IMG Ballardvale Street project

Altman challenges engineer who challenged sewer plans

by Arlene Surprenant

The master plan for Wilmington's sewer system and the credentials of engineer Lawrence Keats of H.W. Moore Associates were the main topics under discussion at Tuesday's session before the state Housing Appeals Committee (HAC).

Representatives of the Investors Management Group were continuing to appeal a decision of the Wilmington Board of Appeals. That board had voted unanimously to deny IMG's subsidized condominium project proposed for Ballardvale Street. Members of the appeals board said they would grant a comprehensive permit only if IMG fulfilled many conditions, one of which was the construction of the eastern leg of the sewer system. IMG officials said that requirement would make their project uneconomic.

IMG attorney Andrew Hier sought to prove Tuesday, through the introduction of letters and minutes of the Water and Sewer Commission, that officials had deviated in the past from their master plan. Hier claimed also that the original decision to extend the sewer line to Ballardvale Street was in response to a problem with Charles River Breeding Lab. He claimed that the commissioners had developed a plan favoring industrial rather than residential use and the "slavish compliance" to that master plan was "not appropriate."

Town Counsel Alan Altman raised the issue of relevancy, saying he was unsure where the "witch hunt" would end. When Keats testified for IMG that commissioners seemed willing in the past to deviate from their master plan in order to connect to a high school proposed for Salem Street and a health facility, Altman argued that Hier was "dredging up ancient history that has no relevancy whatsoever." He challenged Hier and Keats to prove commissioners had deviated from their plan. He brought out that though requests for changes were made, Hier hadn't proved that the commissioners followed through on those requests.

Altman made a major point when he got Keats to admit that a consortium of local industries had paid to extend the sewer line down Ballardvale Street and had paid to have an addition built to the Picher Drive pumping station for their use.

Wilmington sewer officials had originally told IMG there was no room left in that pumping station because it was reserved for industrial use. Keats had designed a less costly way to bring the sewer line to the project site which involved use of that station. HAC Chairman Maurice Corman said he would be interested in learning if there were indeed any limitations to using the pumping station. He said that information would be relevant to his final decision.

A good part of the lengthy session was devoted to Altman's cross-examination of Keats and an attempt to discredit Keats and his testimony. Altman pointed out that though Keats said he had experience with master plans, the only sewer system he designed was in Goffstown, New Hampshire. After an investigation by Wilmington Water Superintendent Paul Dugan, said Altman, it was learned that a sewer pipe in the Goffstown district is discharging raw sewage into the Piscataquot River.

Other facts brought to light during extensive questioning dealt with Keats' lack of formal education in developing master plans, his lack of additional courses of study relating to sewage after graduation in 1959, and his unfamiliarity with the environmental regulations of three state and federal agencies relating to sewers. At one point, Altman made a motion to strike all testimony by Keats from the record. The motion was denied.

At the seventh session to be held June 14, more discussion is expected on the Picher Drive pumping station. It is also expected that Altman will make a move to dismiss.

Superintendent announces resignation plans

by Arlene Surprenant

In a startling letter read last Wednesday, School Superintendent Robert Horan announced his intention of ending his contract with the Wilmington School Committee before the August 1991 expiration date. Horan told the committee he would terminate his contract on a date "to be mutually agreed upon."

Horan will have to give the committee 90 days notice of his resignation. At that time, it is expected a nationwide search for a new superintendent will begin.

Horan, who has led the system for close to three years, later told the Town Crier he plans to finish his Ph.D. at the University of Connecticut.

"I'm not going to abandon the system," he said. He did add, however, he will most likely be leaving within a year.

Members of the school committee reacted with shock.

"I'm shocked. I had hints of it (the decision) and I was told he would make a move but I had hoped he would change his mind," said

Chairman Anthony Accardi.

Accardi credited the superintendent with many "radical changes" in the system. He called Horan "a man with capabilities that can take him into many many avenues."

Bridget Zukas agreed with Accardi's assessment.

"Mr. Horan has done more for this school system than anyone we've ever had," she said.

It was Zukas who made the motion to accept Horan's notice with "extreme, extreme regret." The committee voted 5 to 1 to do just that.

School committee deadlocked on chairman

by Arlene Surprenant

During the annual reorganization process last Wednesday, Wilmington School Committee members were deadlocked as they attempted to elect a new chairman of the board.

After 13 rounds of placing names in nomination, the six-member committee was unable to break a three-to-three tie.

New member Robert Surran repeatedly brought the name of Bridget Zukas up for consideration. At various times, Shirley Callan, Dr. Michael Thomas, and James Demos were nominated to oppose Zukas' candidacy.

Under committee bylaws, election is achieved when one candidate receives a majority of eligible votes. According to Chairman Anthony Accardi, there are no provisions for a tie-breaker. In case of a deadlock, he said, the chairman remains in office until someone changes his vote.

It was decided to go through the process again at the next meeting of the board.

Subdivision could reduce plan to just one lot

Johnny Forrest's proposed gas station land on Lowell Street, ran into some possible trouble, during the Wilmington Planning Board meeting of May 3. The members of the planning board voiced an opinion that after a street is put on the property there will be just a little more than room for one lot, in the High Density Zone.

The board spent well over an hour discussing several suggestions made by other boards and officials. The fire department wants another hydrant on Lowell Street and two more on the property. It also wants two fire alarms one on each building.

The planning board voted that no curb cuts, other than for the proposed Partridge Way be allowed on Lowell Street.

The water department suggested that it be allowed to have a study based on allowable uses of water in a High Density Business District.

Libby (Elizabeth) Sanbounjian, the Wilmington Conservation Administrator, raised questions concerning drainage, especially around the land of Olga Elia near West Street. She also wants evidence submitted on the amount of impact that will be experienced in a ditch in the back of the Forrest property.

Her questions in turn led to an observation by Bill Hooper that the planning should show that there is not going to be any increased run-off.

The planning board then voted that along with the definitive plan there should be submitted plans of inter-lot drainages, to West Street, and possibly beyond.

The members, as they finished their discussion reaffirmed their opinion that Lot Two, in the proposal, will be too small for a business lot.

Selectmen raise questions on duplex proposal

In a recent letter to Wilmington Housing Authority member Dan Gillis, selectmen outlined several questions they would like answered regarding a duplex housing project proposed by Richard and Arthur Dellaciprete. The housing authority is supporting the affordable housing development proposed for Main Street near the Woburn line.

Selectmen asked for clarifications on plans to tie-in to the town's water and sewer lines and inquired whether the project will follow the town's master sewer plan. They also raised questions on deed restrictions to keep the units 100 percent affordable.

The board asked to see a financial analysis of the entire project and letters of commitment from their financing agency. They also asked for references on previous projects and an outline of the developers' previous experience.

A major concern of selectmen seemed to be the filing of a hazardous material report on the site, which is adjacent to a former town dump. They asked how proponents intend to fund the report and who would be responsible for cleaning up the parcel if hazardous materials are discovered on the site.

A special town meeting is scheduled for June 20 to transfer the land to the control of the housing authority and rezone the property for multi-units. There have been legal questions raised on the articles as well.

Town Crier wins six awards

The Town Crier won six awards in the 1988 Massachusetts Press Association annual newspaper contest, including a first place plaque.

Tewksbury reporter Bill Conlon won the plaque in the sports column category for his Outdoors Column. His winning entry was "The First Church of Christ, Outdoorsman."

Conlon also received a first-runner up certificate in the spot news photography category, for a photo from the Lowell mill fire last year.

Cartoonist Frank Bonfilio was given a second-runner-up certificate for a cartoon about cable TV access charges in Wilmington.

An editorial on the proposed Wilmington sludge plant earned the paper a first-runner up certificate.

Editor Larz "Fred" Neilson also took two photo awards: a first runner-up in the personality category for a photo of a washboard player on the Fourth of July, and a second runner-up award for a pictorial series on dandelion puffs.

The awards were presented on Friday evening at the Mass. Press Association's annual banquet at the Marriott in Newton.

Rep. Beckwith offers brochure on saving electricity

State Representative Geoffrey C. Beckwith, who represents Reading, North Reading and Wilmington's precinct 3 in the Massachusetts House, this week announced the availability of a brochure describing helpful hints on how to reduce electricity consumption for homes and businesses.

"I think this brochure will be useful to anyone who is concerned about conserving energy and saving money on their monthly utility bills," said Beckwith.

The publication, issued by the Massachusetts Executive Office of Energy Resources, outlines useful conservation information including tips for increased efficiency for lighting, cooking, clothes washers, dryers, dishwashers, refrigerators, water heating, and home temperature control.

One of the suggestions for lighting is the use of screw-in fluorescent bulbs, which produce light similar to ordinary 75 watt incandescent bulbs, yet only use 18 watts of electricity. They last up to 10 times longer and can save up to $40 in electricity costs over the life of the bulb.

Another example points out that flushing the bottom of home water heaters once a month will reduce sediment buildup which lowers heating efficiency.

These are just two of many ideas outlined in the brochure. Interested consumers can receive a copy by calling Rep. Beckwith's office at 722-2430.

End of the year activities to occupy Sr. class

As the school year winds down, a frenzy of activities will occupy the seniors at Wilmington High.

Senior exams are scheduled for the week of May 16, with makeup tests offered Monday, May 23. There will generally be two exams on each day.

The traditional senior sign-out day will take place May 26. At a scheduled assembly, senior class leaders will read the Class Will, the Class Prophecy, and Class History and recognize the Teacher of the Year chosen by the entire class. Parents are encouraged to attend. They are also reminded that "skip" days are frowned on by school officials and attendance is required until school lets out on the 26th.

The Senior Prom May 20, the senior picnic, and a senior breakfast are only a few of the special end of the year activities planned.

As in years past, graduation activities will take place on two separate days. The Academic Convocation for recipients of special awards and scholarships will be held Friday, June 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym. Both that ceremony and the actual graduation June 12 will be conducted with as much dignity as possible, according to Principal Paul Fleming. On Sunday, graduates will gather on the high school football field by 2 p.m. for the graduation procession. In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be moved indoors.

Fleming asks that parents impress on their graduates the importance of refraining from any behavior which will detract from the dignity of the traditional ceremony. In order to participate at the end of the year event, seniors are asked to attend graduation rehearsals on May 24 and June 3.

Wilmington schools awarded grant for drug prevention

The School Department applied for, and was awarded a three year state grant from the Governor's Alliance Against drugs. The grant, which will operate throughout the 1988, 1989 and 1990 school years, will work toward the development of a comprehensive Alcohol and Drug Abuse Prevention Program in the schools.

The first year of the grant will focus on formation of a town wide Advisory Council, the implementation of Project Charlie in grades K through five, a parent awareness program K through five, materials and training for teachers at the Abundant Life School, and the hiring of a program consultant.

The second year of the grant will seek to conduct a needs assessment dealing with drug/alcohol attitudes for grades six, seven and eight and the provision of drug/alcohol prevention programs for students in grades six, seven and eight.

The third year of the grant will have the same objectives for students in grades nine through 12

Educational Show on cable TV

by Arlene Surprenant
"Behind the Blackboard," a new weekly television program offered on channel six, will feature Shawheen Tech school committee member Kevin Sowyrda and guest speakers from Wilmington, Woburn, Burlington, Billerica, and Stoneham.

Sowyrda presently writes a column, "Frankly Speaking" in the Town Crier.

According to Sowyrda, the educational show will be a community service effort and will hopefully enlighten the public on educational issues.

"There are enough issues with public education right now that this show will be something positive for the schools. Since most tax dollars go to local schools, it makes sense to highlight public education," Sowyrda said.

Sowyrda explained that he has tried to get cable officials to agree to such a show for the past two years. Continental Cable recently agreed to the half hour program.

All shows will be taped on Thursday evenings and will air at various times during the week. They will be listed on the message channel.

Sowyrda's first guest will be Wilmington School Superintendent Robert Horan.

National Pet Week

Breeding pets only breed problems

by Larz F. Neilson

Pet ownership can be a very rewarding experience, but it also carries responsibilities.

Unsupervised animals, not strays, are the greatest problem facing local animal control officers. Many people fail to realize that letting a pet run loose is a form of irresponsibility. Most animals which end up in animal shelters are there because their owners were irresponsible.

The week of May 1 to 7 is National Pet Week. It is a time for people to realize the problems that occur due to people failing to be responsible for their pets.

According to an article in the Christian Science Monitor, the average pet stays with a family for only four years, far short of the average life span of a cat (20 years) or a dog (15 years). Too often, pets are seen as disposable. And even "purebred" pets costing hundreds of dollars are abandoned, when owners become unhappy about having them around.

This shepherd-collie mix is available for adoption. For information, call the Wilmington dog officer at 658-7845.

When pets are seen as unsatisfactory it is usually because of behavioral problems, such as house soiling, biting, barking or overactivity. Such problems, though, can usually be taken care of with training in the early years.

People, though, tend to react to such problems by wanting to get rid of the pet.

While some animal shelters still give animals away, the trend is for shelters to ask a nominal fee, to force people to think about the process, and realize that taking on a pet is more than a casual decision.

A new law in Massachusetts, which takes effect on July 1, requires that animal control officers collect a deposit when they place an animal in a home. This deposit, a minimum of ten dollars, is refundable once the new owner presents a receipt for spaying by a licensed veterinarian.

The idea, of course, is to prevent the problems from simply multiplying. In just seven years, the offspring from one pair of dogs can multiply into 4372. And cats multiply at four times the rate of dogs.

Spaying of animals helps eliminate many problems for owners. It cuts the animal's urge to roam and get in fights. It eliminates the attraction of unwanted males during heat periods. It eliminates cats' spraying. It eliminates blood stains on floors and carpets during messy heat periods. And most basically, it is the most effective way to prevent the birth of unwanted puppies and kittens, and the problems associated with trying to raise them and then find good homes.

Spaying is the most effective way to tackle the heartbreaking problem of unwanted pets. If you have a pet and are tempted to allow it to have offspring, think first of the eight million dogs and cats which were put to death in animal shelters last year.

"Ode to a Dandelion"

Why do people not like me - and why do they want me gone.
They don't want to see my pretty yellow flower - anywhere on their lawn.

Don't they know I'm useful - in oh so many ways,
Use me as a child's bouquet - or garnish me on trays.

For instance they can eat me - or turn me into wine.
Look at my pretty colors - if they decide not to dine.

I don't take much care to grow - in sand or expensive loam.
But to put me to death by the homeowner - is certainly my doom!

Reappointments have impact

by Bill Conlon

'Tis the season for gift-giving in Tewksbury.

No, it isn't Christmas, and only a few birthdays are scattered here and there.

Instead, it's time for the Tewksbury Board of Selectmen to make their annual round of appointments to various boards and offices in town government.

Two boards in particular bear watching this year -- the Board of Appeals and the Conservation Commission.

On the appeals board, there are three regular seats and all five associate member seats coming up for reappointment. Chairman Peter Downing and regular member Ron Girard are both up for reappointment, as is the seat left vacant by Lou Carciofi's election to the board of selectmen.

Carciofi's elevation to selectman will surely be felt when the appeals appointments come up next week. Carciofi's friend and business partner -- Charles Stella -- will probably be named as a regular member of the appeals board, or at the very least reappointed as an associate member.

Two other associate members, Richard Pieciewicz and Robert McInnis, both deserve regular status on the board of appeals. Pieciewicz and McInnis routinely vote against the formation of sub-acre lots -- a trait sorely lacking on the board of appeals.

Other associate members who will probably receive reappointment are Patricia DiBiase (Attorney Kevin Sullivan's secretary) and Charles Gaffney (whose brother, Attorney Jay, makes frequent presentations before the appeals board). No problem ... so far.

The entire board of appeals deserves a long, hard look from the selectmen. A computer listing of the appeals board's track record is now in the works, soon to be published, and the numbers make for interesting reading.

The Conservation Commission also deserves a look at reappointment time. Four of the seven members are up for reappointment this year, with two of the best members stepping down.

Two superb conservation commissioners -- Frank Groom (after seven years) and Barbara Spada (four years) -- are both leaving after this season. Adequate replacements for the two will be hard to find. Both have shown sincere concern for wetlands protection in town and both will be missed after the May 10 appointments.

Also up for reappointment are Pete Peters and Chairman Bob Rodgers.

Appointments to the various boards and offices are made by politicians, and quite often for political purposes. If Tewksbury is ever to shake its reputation of being a "builder's town," then this is the time. The appeals board has fueled the building boom almost single-handedly, by allowing special permits and new building lots all over town, while a shortage of good, dry land in town places the conservation commission in the builder's spotlight.

Anyone interest in filling an appointed town position may apply in writing to the selectmen's office, in care of town hall.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Meet State Representative Jack Flood. A Democrat from Canton, and the House Chairman of the Joint Committee on Taxation, Flood is presently exploring a bid for governor in 1990. And as Flood puts it, "Those common sense, Harry Truman Democrats, are encouraging me all the way."

Flood is a well known fiscal conservative on Beacon Hill, who describes himself as pro-growth and pro-private sector. The rep from Canton is probably best known for devoting his years in the Legislature to warning colleagues of a pending fiscal crisis, due to the spending habits of the present administration. And as Flood said in an interview Monday evening, "My warnings are sadly coming to fruition, as we see the fiscal crisis before us today."

Flood was referring to the new projections for a state deficit, which the chairman of the taxation committee says now total some $310 million. Flood attributes this to the Dukakis administration, which "has spent right up to the last dollar, and added to the fixed costs of state government."

Specifically, Flood referred to the past three years of abundant revenue growth that climaxed at 16 percent, but which has now leveled off to a more normal 6 percent. Flood believes the state should have been preparing for the bust, but compares his consistent warnings on state spending to "going to the party and telling people if they celebrate too much today, they'll have a big headache tomorrow."

The big headache has arrived for Massachusetts, and Rep. Flood says the time has come for a new direction. With this in mind, Flood has beefed up his speaking schedule throughout the state in pursuit of a possible gubernatorial bid, and even has a bi-monthly newsletter for potential supporters, appropriately titled, 'Common Sense and Candor'.

That is probably the best way to describe Flood the man, who says, "The one recurring thing that people find refreshing is that I apply common sense to problems."

For the present deficit problem, Flood suggests that a modest 20 percent cut in the controversial state consultant contracts would provide savings of over $90 million.

On the issue of taxes, Flood will find a wealth of support with the state's working, middle class; and it's toward that group that he appears to be gearing his message of fiscal prudence. "I'd like to take home as much of my paycheck as possible for my family. It's not that you don't care about hurting people, but you don't need new taxes all the time," said Flood.

Flood's personality seems to exhibit a trait that has been noticeably absent on Beacon Hill these past few years, and that's the ability to look a new program straight in the eye, and say sorry, but the money just isn't there. Flood makes no bones about this, stating, "We need leadership with the will to say no. Strong, tough, firm leadership."

The legislator from Canton exhibits a refreshing disposition of blunt honesty. He's been blunt in opposing the Governor on numerous issues, among them the proposed land bank bill, which would institute a sales tax on real estate in Massachusetts. And, he's honest when he brings attention to the loss of 94,000 manufacturing jobs in Massachusetts, while many of his colleagues continue to tout the Miracle. Flood proposes a tax credit on equipment purchases in industry, so that plants can modernize once again. "With all the talk about economic miracle, I think some of the policies promote the exact opposite," adds Flood.

On other issues, Jack Flood describes himself as Pro-Life, a supporter of the death penalty, and an opponent of the recently enacted Health Care Bill.

And while describing all his ideas with careful detail, Flood strikes you as a powerful and charismatic speaker.

Robust, and not afraid of political flack from the rank and file, Rep. Jack Flood could very well make the 1990 election quite a horse race.

The May 9, 1963 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Chairman Robert Michelson of the Permanent Building Committee protested that the comparison was unfair, but the members of the Baldwin Civic Assoc. and others who were present in the high school got the impression that the town would be paying $100,000 for the additional three rooms in the proposed Woburn Street School, compared to the cost of construction for the "round" schools.

Silver Lake Hardware was offering a four cycle, 19" rotary mower with easy spin record starting - Briggs and Stratton for $49.88.

The special town meeting scheduled for May 27 would involve 10 articles.

There would be no honor roll for the most recent marking period because there has been too much absence due to illness.

"A baker's dozen is still 65 cents at Jeff's Donut shop at 1 Grove Avenue," where special orders would be made up for parties, banquets, caterers, etc.

Cheryl Silvers, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Silvers of Salem Street WHS sophomore was pictured with her science exhibit involving the egg production of eggs after the injection of atrophine. She was a second prize winner and went on to the Lowell Technorama (where the picture was taken) and was awarded third prize there.

Editor's comment: Wilmington Community Fund's annual report, published herewith, shows that there were no salaries, no commissions, nor other expenses of solicitation for funds. The Wilmington Community fund is probably among the lowest, in percentile figures for the cost of solicitation, in this Commonwealth, if not in the nation.

North Wilmington Pharmacy warned readers that May 12 was Mothers' Day and one could purchase a pound box of Russell Stover candy for $1.50 and with each purchase the pharmacy offered a "nice fresh carnation."

The 4th annual poster contest sponsored by the Mass. SPCA found Sylvia Kemp of West Street a first prize winner and Joanne and Nancy Miller of Hathaway Road took third places.

Luci's Market offered 25 pounds of potatoes for 49 cents; U.S. choice heavy steer eyeround or newport - 99 cents a pound; and sausages for 69 cents a pound.

William Cotter, Thomas Grant, Daniel MacKay and Gerald Paglia, WHS students spent the previous weekend at Columbia University accompanied by assistant guidance director Vincent Gallucci.

Thank you from Mechanics Savings Bank to its faithful customers: "to all our good friends and customers who have been so patient through the remodeling - thanks for stepping over the boards, putting up with dust, for dodging ladders and for making open house such a success - thanks to the Town Crier for its narrative history of the day the bank opened in 1928. ## Water systems face the 'acid test'

by George R. Allan, Chairman Wilmington Water and Sewer Commission

As this is being written, it is raining - again. This seemingly innocuous rain, which has the same acidity as vinegar, has a dramatic effect on the environment.

Acid rain has come into vogue in recent years. State and national politicians have jumped on the bandwagon. Study after study has been done explaining how nitrogen and sulfur by-products of industry are causing acidification of New England's waters.

Some of the more obvious deleterious effects of acid rain are the decline of fish and aquatic life in ponds and the decay of forests. Although less obvious, our water supplies are also sensitive to acid rain.

Water supplies can be affected in two ways: trace metals may be present in the precipitation; and the increased acidity makes the water more corrosive. The latter is the more significant impact.

Surface water supplies that are not capable of neutralizing the acid rain are more likely to be adversely affected. Quabbin Reservoir, for example, has lost over 75 percent of its neutralizing capacity. A recent state study indicated that 60 percent of the lakes and streams tested in Massachusetts have shown an increase in their level of acidity.

Wells, although less susceptible to acid rain, do need to be treated to counteract its effects as well as the natural acidic condition of groundwater.

What does this all mean to the water consumer?

Corrosive (acidic) water has the following adverse effects on the consumer:

1. Aesthetics - blue and green staining of laundry and fixtures; metallic taste.

2. Economics - deterioration of cement lining of distribution pipes; deterioration of household plumbing; hot water heater failures. This damage has been estimated at 700 million dollars a year.

3. Health - High lead levels from lead pipes or lead solder and high copper levels from copper plumbing.

The potential health effects have led the EPA to establish a new maximum contaminant level for lead and copper as measured at the consumer's tap. In addition, the use of solder containing lead is now banned.

Corrosion of water systems is not going to go away. It has been around since public systems came into existence. Steps can be taken however, to mitigate its effects. The most effective means of reducing the corrosiveness of the water is the addition of an alkaline chemical to raise the pH. The existing water treatment plant in Wilmington and the one under construction, as well as Tewksbury's plant incorporate such a feature.

All municipal water systems are being required by the DEQE to notify the public by mid-June as to the corrosiveness of its water supply and the steps being taken to reduce its impact.

How water departments meet this "acid test" will determine the level of confidence customers have in them.

Silver Lake is a "kettle hole"

Copyright © 1988
by Capt. Larz Neilson

The waters of Silver Lake, in Wilmington, are undergoing a study and analysis by David F. Mitchell, Ph.D. Dr. Mitchell is affiliated with a firm known as Baystate Environmental Consultants, Inc. of East Longmeadow. His studies are a part of an on-going study which dates back, in a fashion, to 1912.

Silver Lake is a "kettle hole." That type of lake or pond dates back to the days 10,000 years ago when the Fourth Glacial age was coming to an end. Melting waters caused lakes, some of them large. Broken off parts of the glacial ice became "icebergs" in those lakes. Sand and gravel, flowing in rivers across the ice, became a part of the bottom of the lakes. Then the floating "icebergs" ran aground. More sand and gravel flowed in, and surrounded the grounded ice. Finally the water flowed away.

The "icebergs" were left, surrounded by the sand and gravel. The ice melted, and ponds and lakes were formed, which acquired the name of "kettle holes."

Probably the best nearby kettle hole, for a casual survey by the viewer, is Mud Pond, off the western end of South Street in Tewksbury. It isn't large, but one can see where the ice of 10,000 years ago was impacted by flowing glacial sand.

Two such kettle holes are in the area of St. Thomas Church. One is northwesterly, at the end of the parking lot, almost a swamp. The other is near Church Street, and the site of the former American Legion Hall.

Silver Lake, it turns out, is a "double kettle hole." It was formed by two icebergs, running aground, side by side. They can be traced by the depth of the water in the lake.

Dr. Mitchell has made an interesting observation.

Silver Lake is a sort of "modern" name for the pond. Over 100 years ago it was known as Sandy Pond. This leads to the conclusion that the pond bottom is indeed sandy.

Dr. Mitchell has drilled through the sand, just to find out what is there. He has found several places that under the sand bottom is a layer of peat - the decomposing grass and leaves which make up, for instance, the peat bogs of Ireland.

In other words the pond was not always sandy. He will tell the people of Wilmington of his findings, some day.

letters to the editor

Dear Capt. Neilson:

I recently had the opportunity to tour Japan as a member of Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra (GBYSO) in commemoration of the group's 30th anniversary.

The 100 member senior orchestra toured four major cities including Tokyo, Hiroshima, Osaka and Kyoto (Boston's sister city), where we performed in concert at each of the four tour stops.

The trip was most rewarding to all of us, both from a musical and cultural standpoint, and I will always have many fond memories of the 10 day tour.

I would like to express my deepest appreciation to the fine people of Wilmington for their display of best wishes prior to my departure, and especially to the members of the Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Wilmington Arts Council and the Wilmington Community Fund their kind support and generosity in helping to make the GBYSO Japan Tour a reality for me.

Sincerely,
Jeff Murphy

Dear Larz:

I would like to, through you, congratulate the two winners of the school committee election.

First, my best wishes to Mrs. Callan on her re-election.

My congratulations also to Mr. Surran. It is my fondest hope that he will have the courage to bring a much needed independent, unbiased voice to the Wilmington School Committee.

This being my third time directly involved in a campaign, twice with running my father's campaign and this time being the candidate, I am continually amazed at Wilmington politics. Some of the things you learn are very hard to swallow.

In our case, I ran for the school committee for strictly one reason, I felt I had shown a strong concerned effort within our school system and I know I certainly could have been an asset to our school committee. My only motive was to help our children achieve the very best from our schools.

I may have lost the school committee race, but I am a winner with something even more important. We ran a class campaign, we did not "pull in any favors" and do not owe anyone in the future. My original goal was win or lose, to be able to hold my head high and feel good about my campaign.

Of course this would not have been possible without a group of very dedicated friends. After an election you absolutely know who your true friends are. To those who had confidence in me and voted that way, my sincerest thank you. To my friends who stood long, cold hours on election day to hold signs, there are just no adequate words to express my gratitude.

You cannot run a campaign without a chairman and this one was no exception. To Linda Scifo, a true friend for so many years, you kept me going. Your hard work and organization skills is an asset to any campaign. Yes, we lost the election but in my book, friendship and loyalty are true gifts and we are so fortunate to have both.

My family...my mom who braved the winds to hold a sign, I was afraid you would blow away!

To my daughter Kelly who has been so patient while her mom campaigned for three long months. It was you who wanted to be at the town hall when the vote was counted and oh how I wish it had been different for you.

As I said many times publicly, this has been a family commitment and no one's spouse was more committed throughout than mine. Jim, we have been together through the good and bad and it is always your strength that has pulled me through the difficult times, this one is no different and I am so thankful for your love. You have always made me feel like a winner even in losing time.

Sincerely,
Suzi Cushing

Dear Larz:

A brief comment regarding your editorial "After Election Comment." Serving in public life is both a rewarding and time consuming task. Those of us who have the privilege, know well how true this is.

During the past five years that I have served as a member of the Wilmington School Committee, I have sat with many members, all of whom I respect. One of these members is Bridget Zuaks. During her tenure as a school committee-person, Mrs. Zuaks has displayed a high level of professionalism and integrity. She has made many important decisions and held her ground always, for what she felt was best for the children, regardless of whether it was politically popular or not.

This letter is not an attempt to canonize Mrs. Zuaks, rather it is more a plea to you, to observe and report about all aspects of an individual.

Sincerely,
Tony Accardi

Dear Larz:

I found the editorial letter you wrote regarding an incident between Bridget Zukas and a candidate for the Wilmington School Committee to be appalling.

As I understand it, there is another version of this story, which you obviously did not take the time to find out about.

My relationship with Bridget goes back to the days when she served in the Order of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Boston. The behavior you accuse her of is most definitely out of character for this fine lady. Bridget is a mother and wife who does volunteer work at St. Dorothy's, but it is apparent that you found it easier to take someone else's word rather than try and present the whole truth.

Mary Smith
50 McDonald Rd., Wilmington

Dear Larz:

At our recent town meeting, after 30 years of attending, I felt we taxpayers were very liberal to the extent. In appropriating over the levy limit, mandated and voted by the people of this state.

Also as to the treatment I received by the Town Moderator, with reference to the statement which I made and was so abruptly cut off, it was not racially intended. If I offended any person, please accept my apologies.

Not taking anything away from the moderator, for whom I have had the highest respect until now, but, I used an old cliché, one I have used for the past 60 years. The phrase never did indicate prejudice and if you asked a lot of people in my age group, the answer could be the same, it's just a figure of speech.

I suppose I was born 40 years too soon and perhaps it's too late for me to make amends but I really do offer my apologies to anyone I may have offended.

W.J. Belbin

Dear Larz:

The attached letter was sent to Assist. Superintendent Dembowski last week.

As this is National Teacher Appreciation Week, I am enclosing the same letter to you.

Mrs. Levine was in the High School Outreach Program until this year. This year it is on an intermediate level.

This is not to diminish other teachers as they all deserve appreciation. However "Mrs. L." is truly exceptional.

Thank you
Ruth E. Marrazzini

Dear Mr. Dembowski,

This is a letter of appreciation to Elaine Levine, a teacher in the Wilmington School System.

Even though Mrs. Levine doesn't teach in a classroom setting, her "lessons in life," be it in her office, a donut shop, student's home, in her car on the way to the registry, etc., or on the phone (her home phone), her lessons are indelibly imprinted on the students she counsels.

Her enthusiastic encouragement to truly resistant students has the gratitude of many parents because we know that without her our sons or daughters would not have graduated.

However, I believe the "kids" themselves pay her the biggest tribute when they feel "okay" to publish in a yearbook that they'll miss "Mrs. L." That teacher has made an impression!

The secret for this success is time for caring.

I know that all of you in the community join all of the parents and students whose lives she has touched with a warm thank you "Mrs. L.," who signs all of her birthday cards and notes: With caring, Mrs. L.

With sincere appreciation,
Ruth E. Marrazzini

Relocation approved

The catering service on property owned by Joseph Fiorenza, on West Street, Wilmington will be moved across West Street to a new site, also owned by Fiorenza. The Wilmington Board of Appeals granted a variance on April 26. Fiorenza was represented by Attorney Joseph F. Courtney.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has taken a part of the property on the east side of West Street by eminent domain, the board was told. The taking was because of the coming changes of the Route 93 interchange, the Lowell Street changes, and new road for West Street.

A further variance was granted for the use of a few feet of residential property, owned by Fiorenza, as a driveway for delivery vehicles. The residential property involved is owned by Fiorenza.

There will be 10 to 12 employees. The trucks being used will be parked inside the building, and all loading operations will be on the southerly side, away from the residential area, the board was told.

Middle schools top agenda

by Arlene Surprenant
The middle school concept is basically an attitude that influences the faculty and an approach to the learning environment. The middle school is not another elementary school nor a mini high school.

These and other facts were brought out during a talk on middle schools April 26 by Dr. John Delaney, principal of the Parker Middle School in Reading. Dr. Delaney spoke before enthusiastic members of the Wilmington Home and School Association.

Part of Dr. Delaney's presentation focused on the reasons why the Parker Middle School has been recognized as one of 200 "exemplary" schools by the U.S. Dept. of Education. The Parker School, said Dr. Delaney, uses a team teaching approach. Administrators hold monthly meetings attended by the teachers, principals, guidance counselors, and special education personnel and require monthly reports on areas of concern.

Students at the Parker School are able to develop a sense of loyalty to their homeroom and a sense of belonging since they remain in the same homeroom all three years. Awards and trophies are given as a result of homeroom competitions.

Dr. Delaney offered some words of advice to other professionals interested in developing the middle school concept in their own systems. He told members classes should be "activity oriented" and not dependent on the lecture method. Since grades six through eight are a time for exploration, students at this level should be provided with a variety of opportunities to pursue and test their interests, he said. Dr. Delaney added that emphasis should be on the student and his skills and personal development.

Dr. Delaney said in implementing such a program, guidelines need to be established from the beginning which could then be evaluated and modified over a period of time. Above all, he explained, don't jump into the concept too quickly; make sure to tailor the program to meet the town's philosophy and student needs.

Members of the Wilmington Home and School Association have requested the middle school concept be an agenda item for a future school committee meeting. They asked that discussion center on the progress and problems of housing sixth graders in Wilmington at the intermediate level and a review of changes which might occur next year. This is the first year sixth graders have been integrated into the junior high program.

Affordable rental plan offered

Plans for a 5-story affordable rental complex were presented to the Tewksbury Board of Appeals last week for a comprehensive permit hearing, and to the Board of Selectmen on Tuesday by builders Chester and "Mickey" Sullivan.

The proposed site is a 2.66 acre parcel on Old Boston Road, across Main Street from the former Nolan's Restaurant.

A single 5-story building was approved for the site, for retail use. The Sullivans instead want to locate up to 77 units in the "Sullivan Place" building, with 20 percent of the units rented under the state TELLER rental program and the remainder at market rates.

The property is listed as owned by Adrigole Realty Trust, with Chester and Mickey Sullivan named as trustees.

Mickey Sullivan told selectmen that if the project is approved, the rental units would be locked-in for a 15-year period, during which the building must remain rental. No change to retail use could be made until the 15-year period is over, he said.

"Sullivan Place will be a nice place to live in Tewksbury," Mickey told selectmen this week, noting the building's proximity to town center and Main Street.

Market price rentals would be $750 per month for a 1 bedroom unit, $850 per month for a 2-bed and in the low 900's for a 3-bedroom unit, Mickey said. He also mentioned that the state will have control over the affordable rental unit rates.

Sullivan said that the Tewksbury Housing Authority will qualify those who will rent the affordable units, but mentioned that he already has a list of 52 names of interested parties.

"I don't question the town's need for rental housing," said Selectman Charles Coppola, "but I am concerned about the zoning by-law for a Multi-Family District (MFD)."

"You will have about 30 units per acre here, and the by-law is much lower," Coppola said.

Sullivan said this type of program can waive the zoning by-laws for MFD units.

Town Manager David Cressman asked if there would be any other plans for the first floor units other than apartments. Sullivan replied that Tewksbury has enough retail space along Route 38. He added that some people feel insecure about a first floor apartment, but that he is going ahead with full rental anyway.

The board of appeals hearing on the apartment proposal is scheduled for May 23, with the appeals agenda beginning at 7:30 p.m. in town hall.

Women's Club elects officers

Following the regular meeting of April 21, the Wilmington Women's Club held an annual meeting.

President Liz White gave a glowing report of the awards and accomplishments of the club's successful year, and expressed her gratitude to the entire board for the cooperation and hard work. The highlight of the meeting was the election of the following slate of officers and directors for the 1988-89 term.

President, Jean Hartka; Vice President, Phyllis Flaherty; Treasurer, Anne Buzzell; Assistant Treasurer, Edith Michelson; Recording Secretary, Elizabeth White; Corresponding Secretary, Irene Brennan.

The Board of Directors includes: Conservation, Susan Durante; Education, Judi Simmons; Home life, Norinne Markey; International Affairs, Helen Noonan; Public Affairs, Hilda Nelson; the Arts, Ann Spring.

Those on the nominating committee are Evelyn Choate, Jean Sottile, Marjorie Walsh, Barbara Webber and Mary Worby.

After the election, President Liz White presented the president's pin and her best wishes to Jean Hartka, who thanked the club for its vote of confidence and vowed to keep Wilmington "on the map."

Following the meeting, a slide show was presented by Hilda Nelson, not only showing her lovely garden through the seasons, but a nostalgic look at Wilmington's Fourth of July parades, and long ago club affairs.

HOME INSPECTION CONTINGENCIES

Today, many offers to purchase homes have a contingency allowing the buyers time to get an inspector or some other structural expert to go through the property. If something turns up that the buyers don't like, they can back out of the agreement without losing their earnest money deposit. While these contingencies can make sellers a little nervous, they're a good idea.

The time period is negotiable, and in most parts of the country the buyers have about a week. During this period, the buyer can usually cancel the contract for almost any reason by stating that the structural report was not satisfactory.

There's a positive side, however. Often knowing they have a brief cooling off period will encourage buyers who would not otherwise make an offer to take a plunge, and the vast majority of these people will go ahead with the purchase. Also, the inspector usually addresses and overcomes misgivings, and confirms their decision to move ahead with the purchase.

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at Kelley & Company. Call us at 658-4171 or stop by our office at 11 Middlesex Avenue (Suite #10) in Wilmington.

Jeff Murphy performed with Mass. All-State Orchestra

Jeff Murphy, Wilmington High School senior and son of Joseph and Catherine Murphy of Gunderson Road, Wilmington, was recently selected to perform with the Massachusetts All-State Orchestra, sponsored by the Mass. Music Educators Association, at its 36th Annual All-State Concert held Saturday, March 26 at Springfield Symphony Hall.

The selection marks the third straight year that Jeff has been selected, through state wide auditions, to represent Wilmington at the Annual State High School Music Concert.

In addition to All-State Honors, Jeff is a five-time selection participant to the Northeast District Music Festival, which precedes audition selection to All-State competition.

A percussionist with the WHS Band, Concert Orchestra, and the Jazz/Rock Ensemble, Jeff is a two-year member of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra (GBYSO), recently returning from a tour of Japan with the 100 member musical group, to commemorate the 30th anniversary of GBYSO.

During his senior year, Jeff was honored as a nominee selection to the McDonald's High School All-American Band, selected to the Sunbelt Fiesta Bowl Honor Band in Phoenix, Arizona, as well as the University of Massachusetts Senior Honor Band.

Jeff plans to attend Tufts University and the New England Conservatory of Music in the fall to pursue a five year, Double Degree Program, majoring in both Physics and Music.

Registry roadblocks this week end

As part of the governor's crackdown on drunk driving, Registry of Motor Vehicles' inspectors will hold a roadblock during the late night and early morning hours in cooperation with local police in Middlesex County this weekend, according to Registrar Robert M. Hutchinson, Jr.

The Registry's objectives are to educate the public to the importance of not drinking and driving, and to ensure safe travel for all by removing from roadways those individuals who are operating motor vehicles while under the influence of alcohol.

Sites are selected in cooperation with local police on the basis of frequency of accidents and/or drunk driving arrests.

Wilmington school news

Woburn Street School

Artists of the Week are Colleen McLaughlin and Paula DeCoursey, both of Mrs. Devine's third grade class.

On May 10 the Woburn Street School PAC will have its only meeting. Hope to see you all there at 9:30.

Miss Field's kindergarten class will be holding a Mother's Day snack for their moms on Friday.

Woburn Street School will have a noon dismissal for teacher in-service workshops Thursday, May 12.

West Intermediate School

The sixth graders at the West Intermediate School recently participated in the Environmental Protection Agency poster contest. First place was awarded to Kenneth Bourinot and second place to Brian Dellascio.

The Gates MacGinite test will be administered to sixth graders May 4, seventh graders on May 5 and eighth graders May 18.

Wrestling is being taught after school on Tuesday and Thursday for boys in grades six through eight under the direction of the varsity coach Mike Nee with assistance from Greg Farnkoff, Chad Halliday and Donald Sullivan from the varsity wrestling team. Approximately 35 students take part in the program.

The West Intermediate spring concert will be presented Thursday, May 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the cafe under the direction of Barbara Mette and Joseph Plassmann. Parents will also be treated that evening to an art exhibit which was done under the supervision of Neal Roberts. Grades six, seven and eight participated using many different mediums of art.

Note: All school news should be submitted by Monday evenings or contact Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696.

Jailbirds

Assistant Town Manager Jeff Hall and DPW Supt. Bob Palmer found themselves in the custody of a Keystone Cop at the Town Hall on Friday morning. Their "arrests" were part of Jail Day, a fundraiser for the American Heart Association.

Keystone Cop nabs two jailbirds at Town Hall

Chief of Police Bobby Stewart eluded arrest by a Keystone Cop on Friday, but the tax collector and the highway superintendent found themselves locked up, having to make bail.

The occasion was "Jail Day", a fund-raising scheme for the American Heart Association. People at the Wilmington Town Hall arranged to have the chief arrested, along with Assistant Town Manager (and acting tax collector) Jeff Hall and D.P.W. Supt. Bob Palmer.

The idea, of course, is that they then have to make bail by calling their friends, asking for donations for the Heart Fund.

The Town Hall was buzzing with excitement on Friday morning, with a large crowd waiting for Bob Palmer and Chief Stewart to show up for their 10:30 meeting.

Chief Stewart, though, smelled a rat. He knew that Palmer was supposed to be the victim, but was suspicious. He did not want to find himself unable to make it to the Red Sox game that evening.

Before leaving the house that morning, he asked his wife for some money, so he could bail himself out. Nothing doing, she said. She needed the money so that she and their son could go to the game that night, in case he (the chief) was arrested.

The white stretch limo arrived at the Town Hall on schedule, and the Keystone Cop arrested the Jeff Hall, and then Palmer. But Chief Stewart wouldn't go near the scene. He parked on Garden Avenue, in sight of the Town Hall, and laughed.

Safety Officer Bob Shelley and the Keystone Cop drove around to Garden Avenue to try to catch the chief. Garden Avenue is no longer a dead-end street, though, and the chief escaped down the new extension of the road.

The limo had to depart with only two victims, Palmer and Hull. They were taken to the Northshore Mall in Peabody, where they spent a couple of hours making phone calls. By 1 p.m., they had raised $1500 for the Heart Fund.

Arts programs funded

by Arlene Surprenant

Two ongoing arts programs received the support of the Wilmington School Committee last Wednesday night.

Committeemen agreed to fund the total cost of $1800 for 12 junior high students to attend the Days in the Arts program in Tanglewood. They also agreed to pay a partial cost of $1710 for six junior and senior high students to take part in the seven day Show Choir camp at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. All monies will come from the Student Activity Account.

According to Lorraine Kalil, Director of Performing and Fine Arts, both summer programs will afford youngsters a chance to become involved in various aspects of the arts.

This is the second year Wilmington is participating in the five day Days in the Arts program. Last year, 14 enthusiastic youngsters had a chance to work with professionals and attend classes in dance, music, art, and creative writing.

Kalil called the Show Choir camp "a strenuous program but a very enjoyable one." This is the first year Wilmington will take part. Those chosen to attend will reportedly bring back new found skills in choreography and music which will be utilized in musical productions at the schools next year.

Named to board

Wilmington Conservation Administrator Elizabeth Sabounjian has been appointed to serve on the board of directors of the Massachusetts Society of Municipal Conservation Professionals. Her term expires in 1991.

At the society's annual conference in April, Sabounjian was also elected to a one year position as treasurer.

The non-profit organization is dedicated to serving and supporting conservation staff throughout the state. Monthly meetings are held. Membership is open to all who serve a community on a full or part time basis.

NOW THAT IT'S LAW,
BANKS EVERYWHERE
ARE MAKING THEIR HOME EQUITY
PROGRAMS LOOK LIKE OURS.

It took awhile for people to realize it, but under certain circumstances, home equity credit accounts could be dangerous.

In fact, without certain safeguards, most home equity programs had made it possible for people to borrow themselves right out of a home.

The danger lay in fluctuating interest rates. A person may find him or herself able to repay an equity loan at the rate it was taken out, but unable to pay when rates rise above a certain point.

A lot of people were putting their homes at risk without realizing it. And many banks were doing nothing to limit credit or interest rates beyond the danger point.

Not MASSBANK. Right from the beginning, MASSBANK set common sense limits on Home Equity lending.

How? By putting a cap of 14 percent on the interest rate.

And by approving credit lines based on people's ability to repay, not just on the equity in their homes.

What happened? The government stepped in and made capping interest on home equity credit accounts the law.

And now the home equity programs at banks everywhere are beginning to look like ours has right from the beginning. To them it's a matter of compliance.

At MASSBANK, it's always been a matter of principle.

Clarence Ethier

Clarence E. "Sammy" Ethier of Woburn Street, Wilmington died suddenly Thursday evening, April 28, 1988.

Mr. Ethier, 72 years of age, was born in Greenfield, the son of the late William J. and Marion (Dawes) Ethier. He spent his youth in Greenfield and had been a resident of Wilmington for the past 50 years. In his younger years, he was active in coaching baseball teams and as an umpire.

Prior to retirement, he was employed by the Boston & Maine Railroad for 42 years and served as a mechanic. He was a member of the Tewksbury - Wilmington Lodge #2070 BPOE and the Pine Valley Golf Club, Pelham, N.H.

Mr. Ethier was the husband of Mary E. (Chisholm) Ethier and father of William J. of Tewksbury, Paul E. of Tucson, Ariz. and Mary Ann Ethier of Wilmington; brother of Richard Ethier of Tewksbury and Beatrice Hoyt of Reading; grandfather of Michelle, Tracey and Mark Ethier, Theodore Petrucci and Susan Campbell and great-grandfather of Melissa Campbell.

The funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, Wilmington on Monday followed by a Funeral Mass at St. Thomas Church, Wilmington, celebrated by the Rev. Charles J. Hughes. Interment took place in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Pall Bearers were Arthur Chisholm, Henry Chisholm, William Ethier and David Stockwell.

Joseph Cavanaugh

Joseph W. Cavanaugh of 36 Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington died suddenly Tuesday morning May 3 at Choate Hospital, Woburn.

Mr. Cavanaugh, 65 years of age was born in Wilmington, the son of the late William S. and Lena D. (Viau) Cavanaugh. He spent his youth in Wilmington, was educated here and was active in sports.

He was a graduate of Dean Academy and a veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict having served in the U.S. Navy and discharged as Yeoman 1/C. He lived on the west coast for several years prior to moving back to Wilmington 25 years ago.

Prior to retirement, Mr. Cavanaugh served as a postal clerk at the Woburn post office for many years and was a member of the U.S. Postal Union. He also held membership in the William Tattersall Chapter No. 106 DAV, Wilmington, Wilmington Council of Aging and Wilmington Senior Citizens and had given many volunteer hours at Bedford Veterans Hospital.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Alfred (Eleanor) Lynch of Wilmington, Mrs. Russell (Anne) Keeler of Lawrence; his brother, Daniel J. Cavanaugh of Nashua; 10 nephews and nieces and eight grand-nephews and nieces. He was also the brother of the late William F. Cavanaugh, Sr.

The funeral will be held Thursday morning at 9:15 from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, 374 Main St., Wilmington followed by a Funeral Mass at St. Thomas Church at 10. Interment will take place in the family lot, Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Serving as pall bearers for their uncle are Alfred E. Lynch, Jr., Patrick, Shawn and Daniel Pierce. Friends may call at the funeral home from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Stephen Coville

Stephen Lawrence Coville, 31, died April 27, 1988 in Duarte, California after a long illness. He was a restaurant manager for more than four years for the Alamo Enterprise Inc. in Camarillo, Calif. He graduated from Wilmington High School and attended UMass at Amherst.

Mr. Coville is survived by his wife, Marueen A. Coville of Newbury Park, Calif; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon J. Coville of Powderhouse Circle, Wilmington; his sisters Leslie Vachaler of St. Louis, Mo. and Karen Coville of Wilmington; his brother Roger Coville of Columbus, Ohio and his paternal grandmother Sarah Coville of Malden.

Services were held Sunday, May 1 in Westlake Village, Calif. The family requests that donations be made to the American Leukemia Society.

Funeral arrangements were under the direction of Pierce Brothers of Valley Oaks.

Joseph LaLiberte

Joseph P. LaLiberte, formerly of Wilmington, of 37 Bellevue St., Lawrence died Thursday, April 28, 1988 as a result of injuries received in a motor vehicle accident in Tewksbury.

Mr. LaLiberte, 28 years of age, was born in Lowell, the son of Ronald E. and Sandra L. (Dupras) LaLiberte of Wilmington. He was a life-long resident of Wilmington prior to taking up residence in Lawrence two years ago.

At the time of his death, he was employed as a truck driver for Roy Brothers Trucking Co., Billerica.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Deborah L. Lee, Renee M. and Janine LaLiberte of Wilmington; two brothers, David A. LaLiberte of Wilmington and Mark D. LaLiberte of Lawrence; his grandparents, Marjorie and Joseph Guarino of Wilmington; two nieces Jessica Dee and Jacqueline LaLiberte, close friends Cynthia Sullivan of Tewksbury and Michael Daly of Lawrence.

The funeral was held from the W. S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, Wilmington, on Monday morning followed by a Funeral Mass at St. Thomas Church, Wilmington, celebrated by Rev. Robert M. Browne. ## Patten Library, rules and policies

Tewksbury's Board of Library Trustees met recently to elect officers for the coming year.

Eleanor Corey will serve as chairman, while Thomas McLeod will serve as vice-chairman and Robert Moore will act as clerk. Other trustees on the board this year include George Collins, Donna Haines and Maureen Kelley. The library director is Elisabeth Desmarais, and the assistant director/children's librarian is Fran Moore.

At their April meeting, the library trustees reaffirmed the library's policy of parental supervision of children's reading. Chairman Eleanor Corey said that it is the responsibility of each parent to supervise his child's reading and choice of materials.

The public library provides materials for all age groups, from picture books for pre-school children to large print books for senior citizens. A collection of materials of special interest to young adults is also maintained. Because of the library's floor plan, there is no physical barrier between the adult collection and the children's collection. Corey stressed the point that it is the parent's responsibility to restrict a child's access to library materials and services if the parent feels that such restrictions are appropriate.

Smoking is not allowed in the library, and patrons are not allowed to take food or drinks into the building. Certain areas of the library are restricted to silent, independent study and reading, and patrons should always be considerate of others by helping to maintain a quiet atmosphere.

The trustees also remind local residents of the current policies on loan periods and overdue fines. Most books and record albums are loaned for a three week period. Best sellers and magazines are loaned for seven days, video cassette tapes are loaned for two days, and museum passes are loaned for one day only. Overdue fines of five cents per day per item are levied on all classes of library materials with the exception of video cassette tapes, for which a fine of five dollars per tape applies.

The public library opens at 10 a.m. six mornings a week, Monday through Saturday. The library closes at 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and at 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

The Board of Library Trustees meets monthly, on the second Monday evening of each month at 7:00 in the library's conference room. The public is invited to attend these meetings, in which library policies and goals are discussed.

Tech receives 12 medals at VICA conference

Joseph Mantini and Sean Leonard of Wilmington and Tewksbury residents Sherri Thurston, David MacElhiney and Darlene Ryan were among the winners as Shawsheen Tech captured 12 medals and a membership award at the 23rd annual Massachusetts State Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) Conference in Boston, April 14-16.

Among the winners were four gold medalists, two of whom will represent Massachusetts at the national competition for VICA from June 20-25. James Goguen of Billerica and Joseph Mantini of Wilmington will travel to Wichita, Kansas for the U.S. Skill Olympics, as the top winners in plumbing (James) and diesel mechanics (Joseph).

Diesel mechanics winner Joe Mantini was tested in hands-on knowledge and safety practices. He performed a diesel engine tuneup, explained to judges how the fuel system operates, measured a crankshaft with a micrometer, and was required to troubleshoot an engine failure. "The judges were very impressed with the students," said diesel instructor Richard Flynn, who noted that not only technical expertise, "but how the students expressed themselves" was part of the judging criteria.

Also winning gold medals were Michelle Francis of Billerica, for business technology shorthand and Sherri Thurston of Tewksbury for cosmetology under 500 hours. Michelle's competition included taking dictation and a theory test and producing mailable letters.

Sherri was required to set the hair of her model, Laurie Nelson of Burlington, and comb it out into both daytime and evening styles. "Sherri was also judged on her professional image," said cosmetology instructor Phyllis Mario. "She was very deserving of this award," said Mario, noting this is the first time Shawsheen captured a gold medal in Cosmetology.

Winning silver medals at the state competition were four Shawsheen Tech seniors, Keith Jones of Billerica, sheet metal; Sean Leonard of Wilmington, drafting; David MacElhiney of Tewksbury, graphic arts and William McCarthy of Tewksbury, diesel mechanics.

Third place finishers from Shawsheen, who received bronze medals were Eric Adams of Billerica, carpentry; Thomas Hannon of Burlington, diesel mechanics; Darlene Ryan of Tewksbury, business technology word processing; and Brenda Stone of Billerica, business technology shorthand.

Membership award

Shawsheen Tech received a plaque, for the largest VICA membership in the state, with 255 students in the chapter. "Shawsheen has been the top membership school for three years," said Patricia Henaghan, VICA chapter advisor. "The students are very interested in being involved in the organization." Henaghan said the plaque would be presented to the school committee and Charles Lyons, superintendent - director at the next committee meeting.

Lyons complimented the competitors on the excellent showing in Boston. "We are proud of your achievements," he said. "This showing not only gives recognition to the talents of our students, but also underlines the strength of the programs we have at Shawsheen."

Car wash fundraiser

There is no national contest for either shorthand or cosmetology students with under 500 hours of training. Therefore, Shawsheen will send just two gold medalists to the national competition.

Expenses for Joseph Mantini and an advisor will be donated by Mack Truck. For the plumbing candidate, James Goguen to attend, funds must be raised, Henaghan noted. The first fund-raising event will be a car wash in the Shawsheen Tech parking lot Saturday, May 7, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

About 1000 students, teachers, advisors and judges attended the state conference. Of those, 720 were competitors. Shawsheen Tech sent a delegation of 30 competitors, six voting delegates and the following teachers: Barbara Ahern, Raymond Elden, John Fusco, Louis Galante, Edward Noyes, Phyllis Mario and Marie Yasi.

Wilmington resident awarded doctor's degree

A Wilmington resident, Janice Copp Burns, recently was awarded the Degree of Doctor of Chiropractic by Logan College of Chiropractic in Chesterfield, Mo. Dr. Burns, daughter of Milton and Rita Copp, will become an associate with a chiropractic practice in North Reading.

Dr. Burns, who graduated Maga Cam Laude, was one of 60 graduating students honored at the 95th commencement at Logan College held April 16 at the Sheldon Auditorium in St. Louis before an audience of several hundred.

Dr. Copp received her undergraduate education at Columbia University, where she earned a Bachelor of Science degree. She is married to Erlmest E. Burns, Jr. and they are the parents of two children, Erlmest E., III, and Andrew.

To earn a Doctor of Chiropractic degree at Logan College of Chiropractic, a student must first complete two or more years of pre-chiropractic studies at an accredited university or college. At Logan College, the student must successfully complete 10 trimesters of study, the equivalent of five academic years. Because most students complete three trimesters per year, however, the degree usually is attained in about three and a half years. Students complete an intensive curriculum encompassing basic and clinical sciences, chiropractic science, research and patient care.

It's YOUR Money

THE "FOREVER"
RECORDS

Now that tax season is over, comes the question: what paper work must be kept, and for how long? The general rule is to keep each return, and the documentation for it, for at least three years. In most cases, the Internal Revenue Service cannot audit your return after three years, unless there is substantial under-reporting of income, or suspicion of fraud.

However, some records should be kept indefinitely. For instance, the cost of your first house, and capital improvements made to it, and the cost involved in any subsequent homes, all go into your basis when you sell and determine your taxable capital gain. You need all the records to document the tax return that reported the sale.

Now that there are IRA's funded by taxed dollars as well as by deducted contributions, you'll need to prove which is which. Save all IRA reports indefinitely. Keep purchase and sales slips on all investments to document the return on which you list the sale. If you inherit assets, save the estate tax return to establish basis.

Joanne Morello and Helen Rheault

Hats Off award winners

Joanne Morello of Pennacook Road and Helen C. Rheault of Whipple Road, both seniors in Tewksbury Memorial High School were presented the "Hats Off" Award on April 28, in a meeting of the Rotary Club of Tewksbury. The Hats Off award is a joint venture of the TMHS Parents Advisory Council and the Rotary Club.

Joanne Morello is No. 6, in a class of 290. She was recognized for her outstanding achievements in the field of Latin as both a junior and a senior by the Junior Classical League.

She was first elected to the Student Council while in Grade 10, and in Grade 11, as a member of the General Council, she was elected treasurer.

Joanne assisted in the formation of activities related to Students Against Drunk Driving, while a junior and continued those activities as a senior.

A member of the National Honor Society, she will participate in their field trip to Quebec, Canada. Along with other students, as a member of Grades 9 and 12, she assisted in the establishment of an Exchange Program with Lyon, in France, a three week exchange of students.

Her community service activities are in the Catholic Youth organization and the Junior Achievement program. In grade 10 she was recognized in a "Company of the Year" award.

Joanne has been averaging 25 hours a week as a cashier in Heartland and was voted the most "Courteous Associate."

She has been accepted to the University of Lowell and the University of New England. She plans to major in physical therapy.

Helen Rheault is No. 8 in a class of 290. She volunteered 30 hours a week while in grades 9 and 10 to Camp Paul, a camp designated to serve the needs of the handicapped. In recognition of this service she was designated a counselor in training.

A member of the volleyball team, she has received varsity letters in volleyball, basketball and softball.

Elected to the National Honor Society in her junior year she was voted the leadership position of Service Committee Chairperson. It was through her efforts that the Peer Group Tutoring Program was made available to all students who needed guidance in class work.

A member of the International Society Club, she has studied abroad, for approximately three weeks, in Lyon, France. She was a member of the Latin Junior Classical League in Grade 11, and she participated in the recent successful Social Political Action Class Blood Drive in Tewksbury High School. That drive collected 119 pints of blood for needy individuals in the student body.

The Pine Street Inn, in Boston, has been a part of her activities. During the Christmas season Helen and members of the National Honor Society spearheaded a drive for food and clothing for the homeless of the Pine Street Inn, a contribution which was vitally needed.

Helen is to attend a field trip to Quebec, Canada, with the National Honor Society. She has been accepted to Tufts, the University of New England, the University of New Hampshire, Quinnipiac, and Temple. She plans to major in occupational therapy.

Heel pain should be treated NOW to avoid further injury!

Treatment is easier than you might think.

Your heel hurts. Throbs. You may feel a stretching or tearing sensation. But you don't have the time or energy to find the right doctor to look at it.

The heel pain is actually caused by problems with a ligament on the bottom of your foot. Undue strain and stress on the ligament, causes it to begin to pull away from the heel bone. The best solution is to 1) Administer medications to reduce the inflammation and 2) To use arch supports to strengthen the foot and reduce stress and strain. This eliminates pain and prevents further damage. We have found that only one percent of our heel pain cases really need to be treated surgically.

When your feet hurt, come to Northeast Podiatric.

Barbara Wiberg's recipe in Chanel 2 cookbook

Hundreds of public television volunteers, donors, and celebrities have contributed their recipes to the Channel 2 Auction Calendar Cookbook which will be presented for sale during the 1988 Channel 2 Auction, major fund-raiser for Boston's public television station WGBH.

Sharing the spotlight with such celebrities as Lee Iacocca, Carol Burnett, Danny Ainge, Vincent Price, and Big Bird is area resident with her recipes:

Wilmington; Barbara Larson Wiberg - "Spinach Squares."

This unique publication which does double duty as a weekly appointment calendar as well as a cookbook will be shown on television during the Auction, June 3-11. The weekly date pages cover 16 months (September 1988 - December 1989), and can be torn out from the spiral binding, leaving a cookbook of more than 200 recipes intact.

Among the celebrity recipes are: race car driver Marion Andretti's "Gnocchi," Big Bird's "Sesame Seed Cookies," television star Carol Burnett's "Vegetable Medley," New England Patriots quarterback Steve Grogan's "Easy Bread," radio personality Dave Maynard's "Moist Turkey Cooking Method," baseball great Tom Seaver's "Pheasant Jubilee," television reporter Hank Phillippi's "Shrimp in Lemon Cream Sauce" and automotive businessman Lee Iacocca's "Antoinette Iacocca's Italian Meatball Soup."

The Channel 2 Auction Calendar Cookbook is available by mail for $25, mailed to: Cookbook Editors, Channel 2 Auction, 125 Western Avenue, Boston, Ma 02134.

Tewksbury High School to participate in mock convention

Nine Lowell area schools will participate in a mock constitutional convention at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium Monday, May 2, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The convention, part of the three year celebration of the Bicentennial of the Constitution, is sponsored by Lowell National Historical Park, Lowell High School, the City of Lowell, and Burger King, and is funded through a grant from the First Foundation.

The schools will represent the 13 states which participated in the original Constitutional Convention and will follow the format and proceedings established in 1787. However, students will debate and vote on four amendments which are contemporary issues: English as the official language of the U.S.; mandatory testing for AIDS; censorship of rock music; and a single, six-year term for President and Vice President.

In preparation for the Convention a group of teachers worked on an extensive two-volume curriculum package which students used as a resource material to develop their arguments.

Several exhibitors will display information on relevant constitutional issues including the American Civil Liberties Union, the National Legal Foundation, United Teachers of Lowell, and Congressman Atkins's office.

The participating schools are: Lowell High School, Chelmsford High School, Westford Academy, Tewksbury Memorial High School, Andover High School, Dracut High School, the Greater Lowell Regional Vocational Technical High School, Methuen High School and Woburn High School.

For more information on the Convention contact George Price, Lowell National Historical Park, 169 Merrimack St., Lowell, Ma. 01852; 459-1014.

Software technical writing program

Applications are now being accepted for the Software Technical Writing Program at Middlesex Community College which begins on September 19, 1988.

This intensive course, designed in cooperation with the Massachusetts High Technology Council is an eight month, part-time program. Classes are held on evenings and Saturdays and allow students with little or no computer education or experience to acquire new skills on state-of-the-art equipment in the software technical writing area, while continuing to work full time.

Students are provided with intensive, hands-on training in both software and technical writing. Three computer languages are included in the software component: PDP-11 Assembly, C and Cobol. The technical writing component focuses on writing assignments which simulate "real world" software documentation. Students also receive training in word processing and management skills.

Placement assistance is available to those who successfully complete the program. Ninety-eight percent of past graduates have been placed with more than 60 companies in the New England area. Students have come from a wide range of academic and career backgrounds.

Applicants must have a bachelor's degree and at least three years of work experience. The application should include a resume, cover letter, certified transcript and a writing sample of two or three pages in length. Application deadline is June 1.

An open house will be held Wednesday, May 25 at 7:30 at the Burlington Campus. Prospective students will have an opportunity to meet with faculty members, graduates of the program and members of the advisory board. For more information, please call 275-8910, ext. 291 or 277.

Sludge meeting

The Wilmington-Bedford Sludge Siting Task Force will meet on Thurs., May 5 at 7:30 p.m. at the Wilmington Town Hall. The agenda includes an evaluation of criteria for the proposed Wilmington site.

The task force is studying the proposals of the Mass. Water Resources Authority to locate facilities in Wilmington and Bedford to handle sludge and other residuals from the metropolitan Boston sewer system. A sludge composting or incinerating plant is proposed for a site off Andover Street in Wilmington.

Math anxiety course at MCC

Middlesex Community College Division of Continuing Education/Community Services has announced that the course "How to Overcome Math Anxiety" will begin Tuesday, June 14 (6 to 9 p.m., three weeks, $34).

Instructors Cathleen Hall of the Middlesex Community College Department of Mathematics and Joanne Sherwood of the Division of Continuing Education recently testified at the task force on women, minorities and the handicapped in science and technology" at Harvard University. Their presentation dealt with the problems of those who have wished to pursue mathematics, but are reluctant or unable, because of anxiety or previous negative experiences. They presented a program designed to affect change in both attitudinal levels and skill levels.

Developed through their research on the subject, "How to Overcome Math Anxiety" will explore the multiple causes of math anxiety and provide concrete relaxation and reprogramming techniques designed to enhance learning capabilities. Through these techniques it is possible to increase success in the workplace/academic setting and reduce stress in every day situations requiring math skills.

For more information call 275-8910, ext. 291. To register, please call 275-2233.

Wilmington police news

Officers LaRivee and Hubby, on April 26 arrested a Lowell man, Dennis Dutille, at the Woburn Police station on a default warrant issued by the Woburn District Court.

Early Wednesday morning Garrett Piper, of Ronald Drive, Tewksbury was arrested by Officer Chris Neville on two charges: possession of a class D substance believed to be marijuana, and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. Sgt. Joe Duffy arrested William Greene of Lowell at about the same time. He was charged with operating while under the influence, operating after a license had been revoked and failure to keep to the right.

Gary E. Smith of Haverhill was arrested Wednesday morning by Officer Paul Jepson, at the intersection of Routes 62 and 93 on the basis of a North Andover warrant. Further investigation revealed a warrant issued by New Hampshire parole authorities. Smith was on parole, related to a manslaughter conviction in New Hampshire. He was picked up by North Andover police for transport to the Lawrence Court where he will be held pending a rendition hearing concerning his return to New Hampshire.

A Middleton man, Richard Madison, was arrested Wednesday evening by Officers White and Miller. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle after suspension of his license, and a default warrant. Later that evening the two officers travelled to Methuen to arrest Douglas LaFlame of Lawrence on a default warrant. LaFlame was held in the lockup overnight due to a no bail provision in the default warrant.

Officer Paul Jepson arrested Mark Minervini, 23, of Malden Thursday at 1:30 a.m. in Wilmington Square. He was charged with operating after suspension and on a warrant arrested issued by the State Police, Andover.

Officer Paul Chalifour arrested Frederick Doherty of Malden at 2 a.m. Thursday on a Holliston police department warrant. He was later released to Holliston officers.

Thursday at 6:50 p.m. officers White and Miller arrested Scott D. MacKenzie of 18 Spruce Hill Rd., Burlington and charged him with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, driving to endanger, and failing to stop on the signal of a police officer.

Later the same night officers White and Miller arrested David A. Sackos of Lawrence and charged him with operating a motor vehicle after his right had been revoked by the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

Friday afternoon officer Peterson arrested Charles T. Taylor of Woodford Street, Dorchester and charged him with operating after his right had been suspended, also his license was expired.

Officers White and Hubby arrested Philip Duncan of Revere Street, Winthrop late Friday afternoon on the basis of an MDC warrant. He was released to MDC officers at 8:45. Later that night Officers White and Hubby arrested a local man on drug related charges. Robert J. Arbo of Jacobs Street, Wilmington was charged with possession of a class D substance believed to be marijuana.

Jon E. Ryan of Aldrich Road, Wilmington was arrested by Officer Juergens Saturday at 9:21 p.m. after a motor vehicle stop. Ryan was charged with operating on a suspended drivers' license. He was cited for operating an unregistered, uninsured vehicle and a check turned up a Wilmington Police Dept. warrant for failure to appear on a charge of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. He was held on $500 cash bail.

Early Sunday morning Officer Dave Axelrod arrested Edward Hazzard of Shirley street, Everett on the basis of a Wilmington default warrant and a Harvard Police Department warrant.

Early Sunday evening Officer Jepson arrested Paul Paquette of Crawford Street, Lowell on three default warrants out of Littleton, Billerica and Chelmsford.

During the week ending May 3 there were 12 accidents in Wilmington. Arrests by the Wilmington police numbered 11. There were eight assists to other police departments and four disturbances were reported.

There was one fire, two reported cases of larceny, two cases of medical assistance and two persons were placed in protective custody. Two stolen vehicles were reported. One was recovered. There were two cases of breaking and entry, four reports of domestic problems and one firearms complaint.

Suspicious activity reports were two, trespassing complaints were four and trailbikes were three. There was one report of a threat, a three traffic complaints, and five reports of vandalism.

Wilmington graduates speak on photography

Two Wilmington High School graduates, Kelly Halley and Stephen Chisholm, visited Suzette Hall's photography classes last week. They spoke about the Hallmark Institute of Photography where both are presently enrolled.

Hallmark's 10-month intensive program is broken into four phases. During the first three phases the students concentrate on techniques. Kelly and Stephen are in phase four, which is dedicated to portfolio preparation. Kelly hopes to go into fashion photography and Stephen would like to be a photographer's assistant.

Kelly explained to her high school audience that she became interested in Hallmark when she heard Bill McLellan's presentation last year. Bill, a former student of Ms. Hall's, graduated from Hallmark in 1986. Kelly also remarked that she was at an advantage when she started Hallmark's program because of the background she received from Ms. Hall's photography classes.

Stephen shared a lot of technical information with his listeners and presented some impressive photographic equipment. He also displayed his own work that he had done at Hallmark.

Kelly's and Stephen's remarks gave Wilmington High School students an excellent opportunity to learn about Hallmark first hand. Ms. Hall believed that her students were especially attentive to Kelly and Stephen because they graduated from their school, Wilmington High School.

Nearly 200 attended social

A wonderful day was enjoyed Thursday when 190 seniors attended the therapeutic social, although the day was not what we would have liked weatherwise. We thank all the seniors for their cooperation in following the rules. We realized many get a little impatient waiting for the buses to leave the parking lot before any cars are allowed to leave, but the safety of all is our responsibility.

Law project

Starting with the month of May, every month, on the first Wednesday we have been assigned a paralegal from the Senior Citizen Law Project. We will have Edward Gillis from 10 a.m. to noon on May 4. He will assist with legal problems as they arise. Also problems with Medicare, Medicaid, SSI, food stamps, or housing. Ed is very well qualified in the field, working for the lawyers of the Law Project for more than 10 years. If you think you might qualify for SSI or Medicaid and food stamps but do not want to go to the Welfare office until you know that you do, Ed will be here to tell you whether you do or not.

Friday: Cheese omelette with cheese sauce, lyonnaise potato, zucchini, tomato, oatmeal bread, vanilla pudding with jimmies.

Monday, May 9 starting at 1 p.m. Prizes are available for the games. The Kiwanis and Rotary donate $30 and a $25 food gift certificate. These donations are raffled on the whist. Three $5 at each whist and the Rotary's $25 food gift certificate at the last. Tickets are available at the Center as you enter. If you would like a chance to win the certificate put your name and telephone number on a ticket and put it in the box. The tickets are free, and you are allowed only one per month. The senior who won last month was very happy as she could use the certificate. You may win this month. If you are a shutin and cannot get out, call the office. Louise will put a ticket in the box for you.

Spirit of Boston
If the Spirit of Boston trip is filled when you call, we will put your name on the waiting list. Don't forget to give Louise your name and telephone number. We had 15 on the waiting list for Augustine's and filled all of them with cancellations. Even though you are on a waiting list, it is a good bet that you will be going on the social.

Lion's Club dinner-dance
We are signing up for the Lion's Club annual senior citizen dinner dance. This year it will be held in the Knights of Columbus Hall; it is free, but you must sign up at the Center. We have to give the number attending for them to prepare the meals. The social will be held June 1 at 7 p.m.

MBTA passes

A representative from the MBTA will be at the Buzzell Senior Center June 1 between 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. to issue Senior Citizen Photo/ID passes. To receive a pass a senior must be 65 years or older or disabled. Proof of age and disability must be given.

Backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg
What's this special attraction, that has made the tomatoes number one in America's vegetable gardens?

A recent report from the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture tells us that 93 percent of this country's 60,000,000 non-commercial food growers include tomatoes in their gardens. Further, this article informs us that an estimated 450,000,000 young tomato plants will be set out this year. Impressive numbers!

How do we explain this love affair gardeners have with tomatoes? I'll suggest three reasons:

1. Taste and texture of "homegrown" The difference in taste and texture between store bought and home grown tomatoes is roughly equivalent to the difference between a day at work and a day at the beach. We suffer from October through June with those miserable excuses for tomatoes we buy at the store, all the while day dreaming of a fresh tomato picked in our own garden at the peak of ripeness.

2. Ease of culture, Even the beginner gardener can grow tomatoes and expect, with reasonable care, to harvest a continuous crop from July through September.

3. Payback for minimal outlay Stop and consider: What other under $10 expenditure that you make in the course of a year can provide more tangible and psychological regards than a few dollars spent on your tomato plants in May?

Only a generation ago, most folks started their tomato plants indoors in March. Times change, and today it is the rare gardener who takes the time (has the time?) to start his or her plants from seed. And, indeed, why go to the bother when the commercial growers have close to perfect starting and growing conditions, and can supply us with a dozen stocky eight week old plants for under $10.

A key question New England gardeners must address is - when is it safe to set out our tomato plants? In other words, on what calendar date can we be 98 percent certain we will not lose our plants to a late spring frost? Here in the Merrimack Valley we must be extra patient each spring, since our climate is closer to that of Manchester and Concord, New Hampshire's than to that of Cambridge, Somerville and Boston. The latest frost I have observed in Wilmington going back a quarter of a century was on June 6, 1971. Just about everyone lost tomato and pepper plants that year and had to start over. The problem is that the last frost can range all the way from April 20 to Memorial Day.

The general rule in these parts is to hold off until mid-May at the earliest. I will set my 15 plants out the weekend of May 14-15 and then I will keep an ear tuned to the 6 p.m. weather forecasts, which will usually tip us off in the event of a possible frost. About one year in four we can expect a light frost after May 15. If frost is forecast after the plants are set out, they can be protected overnight with newspaper cones or inverted plastic waste containers, held in place with a rock. Just don't forget to uncover them in the morning, when the temperature is back up above the freezing mark.

How many plants should we put in? That depends on how large the family is, and how much room we have in the garden. A family of four will find that six to eight plants will be enough, while a larger family (or a willingness to supply the neighbors and relatives) may call for 12 to 15 plants. Spacewise, the plants should be no closer than three feet apart, and planted toward the north and west side of the garden so as not to shade the lower growing vegetables.

It is still too early to buy our plants. Wait another week or two. Next week, in addition to revealing the source of "the healthiest, and bearingst tomato plants in eastern Massachusetts," we will discuss transferring our plants from pot to garden, review the merits of staking versus no staking, reveal a simple 100 percent foolproof method of foiling cutworms, and plan a fertilizing program which will guarantee a bumper crop of plump, luscious tomatoes from July through September.

For those who may be interested, this writer will be Dave Maynard's guest this Saturday morning, May 7 from 7 to 9 a.m. on radio station WBZ, 1030 on the A.M. dial.

Tech students take part in Student Government Day

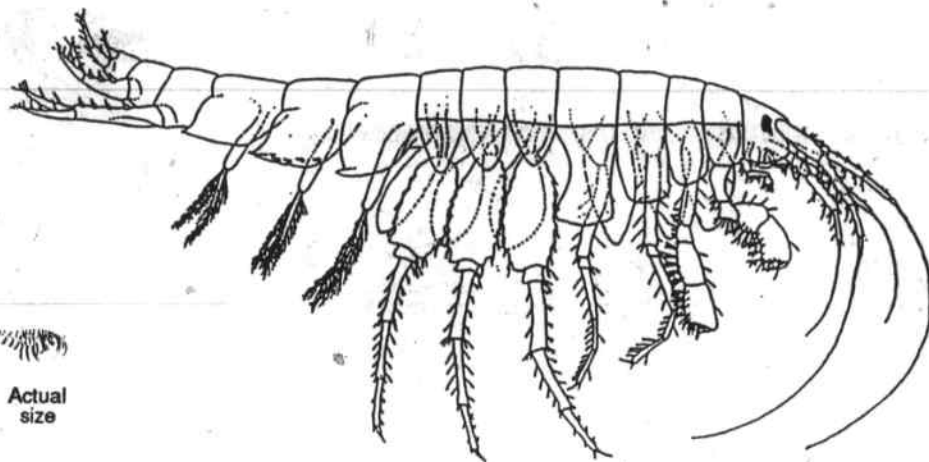

Two juniors from Shawsheen Tech took part in the Student Government Day Program at the State House in Boston earlier this month.

Kevin Sareault of Billerica served as the delegate; Kerry Dodge of Wilmington was the alternate, who also attended the program.

Kevin was selected to be the MDC Commissioner. After attending the morning session at the State House, Kevin then spent time with the MDC police, observing first hand the operations within that department.

Student Government Day is sponsored annually by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Education. Students attend a series of three preliminary meetings before Student Government Day takes place.

Mystic Valley Amphipod

This tiny crustacean creature, called the Mystic Valley Amphipod (MVA), could well become the Massachusetts version of the Snail Darter, the creature that stopped a dam. The MVA has one set of feet for walking and another set of feet for swimming. It is 12 millimeters long, or about 1/2 inch.

Mystic Valley Amphipod

Tiny creature could become 'Snail Darter' of Massachusetts

by Capt. Larz Neilson
A tiny crustacean creature may hold the key to whether a developer is able to proceed with a 48-acre office park.

The Mystic Valley Amphipod (MVA) lives a highly specialized existence in Woburn, Reading and Wilmington. It is also said to be found in a few localities in Rhode Island and eastern Connecticut, and possibly in southern New Hampshire. One place where it is found is behind the former Hupper home on West Street, on the Reading side of the Route 93 bridge.

The MVA lives in cool shallow ponds of slow-moving water, ponds which abound in leaf litter. It has a life span of about one year. It subsists on a diet of rotting leaves of the red maple and white cedar. During daylight hours it lies concealed under vegetation or leaf litter, sometimes under stones. The females are a vivid greenish blue. The males are orange-brown. The size of the MVA is just under 12 millimeters in length.

The creature seems to be a relict (e.g. survivor) of the last ice age, about 10,000 years ago. It is a creature which is labeled Species of Special Concern by the Mass. Division of Fisheries and Wildlife.

As such, it is of special concern to Libby Sabounjian, the conservation administrator of Wilmington. It is also of special concern for a California firm called TCW.

The Mystic Valley Amphipod could well become to TCW what the Snail Darter was to a dam in the South about a dozen years ago.

TCW seeks to develop an office park, called Inwood Park, easterly of Route 93, on land that is in Woburn. The only available access to the land is through Reading and Wilmington, off West Street. The developer and previous owners have spent years trying to iron out the problems of how to get to that land. The town of Reading has been fighting having the access run through that town.

As a part of the review process for any development that will touch wetlands, there must be a report known as an Environmental Impact Report (EIR). The April 25 edition of the Daily Times Chronicle of Woburn and Reading carried a report on that EIR.

As a result of the EIR for Inwood Park, Secretary of Environmental Affairs James Hoyte has made a review, calling the park "troublesome". Of particular interest to Hoyte was the proposed "habitat replication of the Mystic Valley Amphipod."

He sought scientific evidence that a wildlife habitat of a given wetland can be adequately replicated by a replacement wetland. Secondly, he said, he does not encourage replication or translocation, in preference to accommodating habitat by design. That statement may be translated to say he believes the natural home is better.

Hoyte also observed that the project will be difficult to review because both Woburn and Wilmington have wetlands jurisdiction for the proposed project.

The engineers who prepared the preliminary EIR did report on the life of the MVA.

"It has been observed," they wrote in part, "that this species is able to colonize in artificially created swales and shallow ponded areas, providing that these areas are occupied by wetland vegetation characteristic of the surrounding wetland and contain leaf litter and other organic inputs resulting from plant decomposition. Such created wetlands must be free of frequent excessive inputs of drainage water."

There was an extensive review of surveys made in 1986 of five areas of vegetated wetlands in which the MVA had been collected from two sites. In July 1987, the report said, areas of the red maple marsh and swamp were dry, including several MVA sites which in 1986 had contained water. The report cited "grass clipping," retention/detention pond discharge, and siltation from the dirt parking facility for truck trailers.

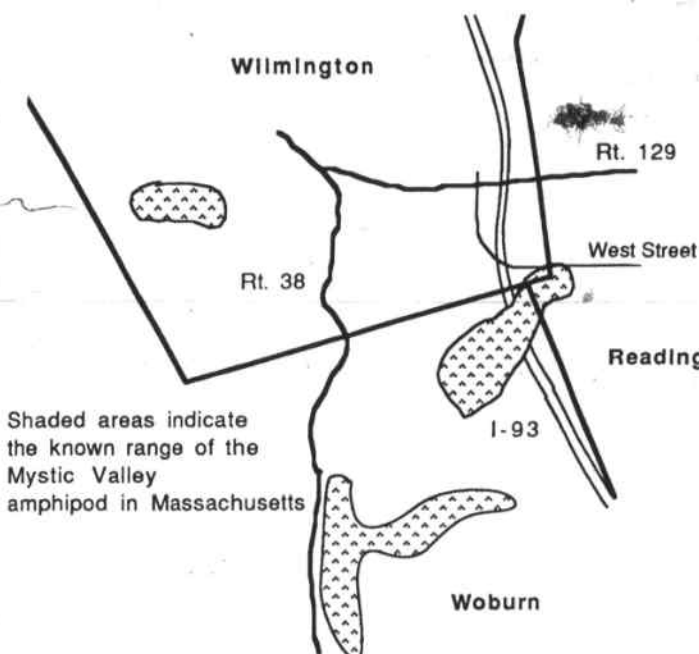

"The persistence of the Mystic Valley Amphipod, within the red maple swamp, despite adjacent development, implies that it is tolerant of 'some pollution' the report stated.

All of this seems to leave the developers with two options. If permitted, they could "replicate" a wetland. Or they could build a bridge over that swamp and the Mystic Valley Amphipod.

Hupper house

This house on West Street in Wilmington sits in what is referred to as the "Wilmington sliver" of the site where the Mystic Valley Amphipod has been found. Once the home of the Hupper family, the house would be demolished to allow access to the proposed Inwood Park, a 48-acre office park proposed for a site in Woburn on the easterly side of Route 93. The X on the road at the left of the picture indicates the town line between Wilmington and Reading.

Shaded areas indicate the known range of the Mystic Valley amphipod in Massachusetts

Women: career change or job re-entry?

When faced with career "burnout" after 20 years in the travel industry, Dianne Stoller gave herself a year to make a career change. After considering a variety of educational programs, she chose the LIVE program as the most attractive alternative. Having recently completed her LIVE internship doing market research for a software company, Dianne has had the opportunity to take a closer look at her qualifications and develop the confidence necessary to make a permanent change.

Entering its 12th successful year of operation, Middlesex Community College's LIVE (Learn, Intern, Validate for Employment) program continues to attract and serve a diverse group of women who are interested in career change or job re-entry.

Women seeking to return to the job market or embark upon a career change often experience weakness in two critical areas, explains Barbara Rubin, coordinator of LIVE, "They are lacking confidence and unwilling to take a risk." The LIVE program offers women the unique opportunity to take a risk and enhance self-esteem in an environment of structure and support.

LIVE is a comprehensive, part-time one year program which provides classroom training, followed by an internship experience.

The first semester consists of classwork covering career development and planning, informational interviewing and resume preparation. Management and communication skills, as well as assertiveness training, are also included. Goal setting and networking skills that often do not come easily to women - are stressed. In addition the women receive something of immense value which is unique to LIVE - peer support. As one recent graduate commented, "The energy of the group was immense - it helped to carry you through those times of self-doubt and gave you the encouragement you needed to achieve your goals."

It is the internship project which is often viewed as the heart of the LIVE program. Internships are tailor-made to suit the need of the individual with participants taking an active role in their development.

"The internship phase is an excellent opportunity to redefine and hone skills, learn new skills and get a flavor of life in the workplace," says Joanne Morgan, director of the internship program. Current interns are situated in such diverse settings as Digital Equipment Corporation, WGBH-TV, the Federal Aviation Administration, and Cambridge

College. It is the skills developed during the internships that increase the confidence of the participants. One recent participant who interned at Wang was trained in electronic publishing. "A year ago I had never touched a computer, and never thought I would," commented Kristen Cheyne. "Now I am learning to use my fine arts background in a high tech way - something that I never thought was possible."

Other interns have been able to update pre-existing skills - such as computer programming. Many women with sophisticated skills in the human services and health care fields have been successful in transferring them to industry in areas such as training and human resources.

To learn more about the next LIVE program which begins in the fall of 1988, you are invited to attend a free informational meeting at Middlesex Community College, Burlington Campus, Terrace Hall Avenue, May 25 at 8 p.m. For more information or reservations, call Barbara Rubin at 275-8910, ext. 298 or 291.

Earnings and sales both up at Raytheon

Raytheon Company reported an 11.4 percent increase in earnings and a 22.6 percent increase in earnings per share on sales increase of 11.3 percent in the first quarter of 1988 compared with the same period last year.

Earnings for the quarter were $113.3 million, or $1.68 per share, and sales were $1.949 billion. In the first quarter of 1987, the company earned $101.8 million, or $1.37 per share on sales of $1,750 billion.

"All of Raytheon's business segments contributed to our company's profits in the first quarter," said Chairman Thomas L. Phillips. "Beech and Energy Services were much improved, reflecting both successful market strategies and cost reductions. This turnaround has made a significant difference to the bottom line."

Overall earnings benefited from higher sales and operating income, as well as lower taxes. Earnings per share were further augmented by fewer outstanding shares.

Shawsheen Tech receives donation from Jeep Eagle Corp.

Two engine simulators have been added to the training equipment in the automotive program at Shawsheen Tech thanks to a donation from Jeep Eagle Corp., a division of Chrysler Motors.

Robert Wentworth, parts manager for Courtesy Jeep Eagle in Lynnfield knew the engine simulators would be available. "Joe (Joseph LeDuc, service instructor at the Woburn Training Center) and I have known each other for years, and I knew Woburn replaces the engines periodically," he noted. Wentworth is also a member of the Shawsheen Tech Program Advisory and the parent of Robbie, a junior in carpentry and Charlie, a ninth grader. So it was natural for him to discuss his idea with the advisory committee and suggest the donation.

"These will have tremendous value for the students, giving them additional opportunities for hands-on training," Wentworth observed. He had strong agreement from instructors James Mullen and John Schellhorn, whose students can use the simulators, one gas and one diesel, for a variety of educational exercises.

"With this tool, we can create faults in the system," said Mullen, automotive lead teacher. "The students can then troubleshoot to correct the faults. Those are the things they won't tend to forget," he said.

"These are excellent training tools," Schellhorn said. "Students can comprehend the difference between gas and diesel engines, do a fuel check, remove and examine the air intake and do a diesel pump check, for example," he said. Schellhorn said perhaps the biggest advantage of the systems is that they are mounted for easy access. "When you work under the hood of a vehicle, it is crowded. You can have just two or three students at a time. These units can be seen easily. At least a half dozen students at a time can be receiving some benefit."

"This is what we need from an educational standpoint," said Anthony Bazzinotti, vocational coordinator. "Students can see how components relate to each other; instructors can teach diagnostic testing. We are pleased with this generous donation."

Fiore races
for second spot

TMHS senior Dan Fiore (right) clears a hurdle enroute to an impressive second place finish in the 330 yard intermediate hurdles race against Methuen last week. See story on this page.

Conley scores
big victory

Tewksbury's Kristen Conley sprints for the finish line to win the 300 meter low hurdles with a time of 49.8 in the meet against the Methuen Rangers. Kristen also won the 100 meter high hurdles (17.3) and the triple jump (33-5). Conley will be meeting some formidable opposition when she tangles with Wilmington's Sue McFadyen in MVC action this week. McFadyen has been a winner in the long jump, 100 meters and the 300 meter hurdles with consistent efforts throughout this track season.

Outstanding defensive play was shown by Tom Bryant, Steven Previte and William Latta. Great offense was offered by Mark Plachiwicz and David Henderson.

TMHS boys' track

Redmen shine in defeat

The Tewksbury High School boys' varsity track and field squad hosts Wilmington High this afternoon (May 4) in a 3:15 meet.

On Saturday, the freshmen and sophomores on the team will head to Wilmington for the annual freshmen-sophomore Northern Area Meet starting at 9 a.m.

On Monday, May 9, the Redmen battle the very tough Billerica Indians at Billerica's Marshall Middle School in a key meet if a winning season is desired.

Methuen 103
Tewksbury 42

One of the good things about a sport like track and field, is even when a team gets bombed, much good can come out of a meet. In Tewksbury's 103-42 defeat to the Methuen Rangers, a loaded team of talented individuals, the Redmen had 58 individual performances in 17 events, with 28 of the performances being personal bests. Tewksbury had four winning individuals.

Junior Pat McCaffery led a sweep in the two mile run for the Redmen, while sophomore distance ace Jeff Rideout defeated a talented Methuen mile crew with a 4:43.9 time.

Second place efforts were produced by senior Dan Fiore in the 330 yard intermediate hurdles; senior co-captain Jeff Stone in the pole vault; sophomore Abe Mills took a good second place in the triple jump; while sophomore Chris Sands was outkicked in the 880 yard run.

Another sophomore Kevin Kelley got his first points of the season with an excellent second in the two mile run. Third place finishers were Fiore in the high hurdles; senior Carl Melius in the 440 yard run; sophomore sprint ace Rob Lombardi in the 100 meter and 220 yard dashes; Tim Martin in the two mile run; and Jim Avery with a good third place in the 330 yard intermediate hurdle race, and finally, freshmen Sean Conley, as the talented track and field athlete took an excellent third place finish in the 880 yard run.

Other notable and personal best performances that should be recognized were: senior Chris Macie in the discus; along with senior Scott Niles in both the discus and shot put; senior Joe Andriolo did a good job in the long jump; junior Dave Perry continues to improve steadily in the javelin; junior Tom Canarelli is working to be not only a good javelin thrower, but a shot putter as well, along with sophomore teammate Jim Zaroulis; junior Jim Avery continues to improve meetly in both hurdle and events, as does middle distance-sprinter, junior Tommy Hooper.

Relays in Andover

Tewksbury travelled to Andover for the State Coaches Relays, scoring its' first points in four years, 12 points, to finish 11th in a field of 20 teams throughout Eastern Massachusetts. With every event being a relay, the Redmen had three teams place in the money, with one team finishing just one place away from a ribbon.

The sprint medley team took a third place, as Carl Melius ran a 440 yard first leg of the relay in 54.9; Rob Lombardi ran a good 24.5 second leg of the 220 yard dash, with junior Tommy Aylward running another fast 220 yard dash on the third leg. Sophomore Jeff Rideout ran an outstanding anchor leg with an 880 yard time of 2:02.9.

The 4 x 880 yard relay team took an impressive fourth place with good legs by freshmen Sean Conley, junior Tom Hooper, senior Brian Sturtevant and sophomore Chris Sands.

The three man pole vault team of Jeff Stone, Tom Aylward and Dan Fiore took a hard earned fifth place finish.

Two other notable individual performances came from senior Chris Macie in the discus and Pat McCaffery in the mile.

Wilmington Youth Soccer

Wizards weave magic

The Wilmington Boys' Under 10 II soccer team had two significant events during the April 30 game against the Winchester V team. First, the Wilmington team adopted the nickname Wizards. Second, the Wizards' magic continued as the team took its' third straight victory by downing Winchester, 1-0 despite some very wet and muddy field conditions.

The game opened with the ball in the Winchester end and it remained there for almost the entire game. Only the hustle of the Winchester goalies prevented the Wizards from scoring more goals.

Determined drives by Billy Covino, Scott Griffin, Danny Bennett and Kevin Kacamburas were either stopped by the goalie or slipped past an open net.

Finally, it took attempts by four different players to score the game's only goal. First, Tommy Casella stopped a Winchester clearing attempt and almost scored from five yards away. The shot rebounded to Dennis Torpey whose kick rolled to Scott Griffin. Scott trapped the ball, but was unable to get a shot away.

Finally, Chris Sampson came in from his halfback position to slam the ball into the net.

The defense continues to shine with its' third consecutive shutout. Goalies Joey Bamberg and Adam Vogel did their best Maytag repairman imitations, as they handled only one shot on goal. As usual, fullbacks Doug Bonnarigo and Buddy Phillips booted back most of the Winchester drives.

But it was the special efforts of halfbacks Joey Bamberg, Jay Isberg, Chris Kilburn, Chris Sampson, Tommy Heigham, Adam Vogel and Matt Mutchler that were responsible for stopping most of the Winchester clearing attempts.

Some other good plays by the Wizards included two nice heads of the ball in midfield by Kevin Kacamburas and determined sloshing through mud and water by Nicholas Athanassiou, David Vitale, Billy Covino and David Ward. The Wizards' next game will be at Billerica III.

Tech unbeaten

The Shawsheen Tech varsity softball team continued its' defense of the C.A.C. title with convincing wins last week over Lynn Tech (16-1) and Presentation of Mary Academy (Methuen, 4-1). Shawsheen has improved its' record to 6-0.

Leading the way over Lynn Tech were seniors Marya Ellen Edwards and Korinne Smith with three hits apiece, while juniors Karen McLaughlin (Tewksbury) and Sherri Thurston (Tewksbury) both contributed two hits. Tracy Murray (Wilmington) enjoyed a fine overall performance with one hit, one RBI and some fine defense to aid the victory.

In an early season matchup of undefeated teams, Shawsheen got a three run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning from junior Judy Johnson to defeat PMA, 4-1 and earn the hard fought victory.

Kathy Madden (Wilmington) went the distance for the victory, raising her record to 5-0 on the season. Madden received some fine defensive play from thirdbaseman Lynn Murray (Tewksbury), Val Crowell (Tewksbur) and Jule Anzivino (Tewksbury).

The 4-1 victory was a complete team effort, as in the bottom of the seventh pinch runner Sherri Thurston was followed by a perfect bunt by pinch hitter Tracy Murray and then the homerun by Johnson broke open the well played 1-1 game.

Friendly rivals

These friendly rivals in the Wilmington Little League, the Yankees (top) and the Red Sox, are ready to do battle this spring. The two teams got a winter's worth of kinks out in the annual Wilmington Little League parade Sunday. Little League officials are reminded that game reports (typewritten or printed) are always welcomed by the Town Crier sports department.

I would like to congratulate

of Parker St., Wilmington, ages 8 yrs. and 10 yrs. for completing another year of bowling with the M.B.A. at Brunswick Lane in Burlington. Nicholas received 2 patches, one for an 80 average and the other for 30 points over his average. Jodi received four patches, one which was for a 300 point score. Also three awards - one for the most strikes, one for high average and one for second place.

Rec coming events

CPR

The Wilmington Recreation Department will conduct a CPR course for ages 12 and over Tuesday evenings, June 7, 14 and 21 from 7 to 10. The classes will be held in the recreation office in Town Hall. Cost is $15.

Register in person in the Rec office from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.
Monday through Friday or call 658-4270.

Tiny tots registration

Registration for the popular Tiny Tots Program will be held at the Recreation Office Wednesday and Thursday evenings, May 18 and 19 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. and weekdays thereafter from 8:30 to 2:30. This is a social/recreational program for children who have not entered first grade. The four year olds attend the morning session from 9 to 11:30.
The five and six year olds attend in the afternoon from noon to 2:30.

There are field trips, class photos, snacks, personal T-shirts, arts and crafts, singing, games, special events and a big bunch of fun.

Bay State games

While the world is beginning to stir over the upcoming Summer Olympics in Seoul, we in Massachusetts are preparing for the sixth annual celebration of our own statewide amateur sports festival - the Bay State Games.

The games present a challenge to athletes from scholastic age to masters in 21 Olympics sports. Join top athletes from every city, village and town in Massachusetts at the Bay State Games finals July 12-17 at several sites in the Boston area.

From basketball to racquetball, swimming to table tennis and weightlifting to volleyball, there's something for nearly everyone.
For more information contact the Recreation department, 658-4270.

Shriners circus

Registration is taking place for a trip to the Shriners circus Saturday, May 7 for Wilmington's special kids. Call the Rec Dept. at 658-4270 for information.

Another coloring contest

The Recreation Department has another coloring contest. This contest is for ages four through 12.

The contest is called "Color Me Healthy" and is sponsored by the Harvard Community Health Plan.

Fifty dollar savings bonds will be given to winners. For details and coloring blanks go to the Rec office from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. or call 658-4270.

Discounts

Discounts for the Showcase Cinemas, including Woburn and Lawrence, are available at the Recreation office. Stop by anytime or call 658-4270 for more information.

Discounts for Magic Kingdom and Epcot as well as other Florida attractions are also available.

Namath football camp

Doug Williams, 1988 Super Bowl
MVP of the Washington Redskins will be joining the staff of the Joe Namath Football Camp this summer.

Joe, who himself was MVP of Super Bowl III, will again have a very strong lineup of NFL players which includes Mark Bavaro, Jim Burt, Brad Benson and Eric
Dorsley (Giants); Freeman McNeil,
Wesley Walker, Pat Ryan, Troy
Benson, and Kurt Sohn (Jets);
Everson Walls (Cowboys); Andre
Tippette, Fred Marion, Tony
Collins and Steve Nelson (Patriots).

In addition, over 75 college, high school and pre-high school coaches will be in attendance.

The camp, which is open to boys eight through 18, will run from June 26 to July 8, at Quinnipiac College, Hamden, Ct.

For information contact the Namath-Dockery Instructional

Football Camp, 9728 3rd Ave.
Suite 403, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11209 or contact John Dockery at (718) 833-6009.

Belmont camp

On Monday, August 8 the ninth annual Belmont Hill School Football Day Camp will begin.
Coach Joe Restic from Harvard, coach Buddy Teevens from Dartmouth, coach Duane Ford from Tufts and coach Chris Palmer from Boston University will be in attendance as well as a superior group of high school coaches.

Boys in grades eight-12 are invited to contact Camp Director Chip Dewar for a free brochure, at 484-4410 or write him at the Belmont Hill School, 350 Prospect
St., Belmont, Ma 02178.

Son of Great Race run in five hours

Unlike last year, in which the Great Race to the Sea went from Tewksbury to Newburyport, this year's S.W.E.A.T. event covered only the 24 miles of the Shawshen River, from Bedford to Lawrence. First place this year went to Mark Derome and Eric Johnston, with a winning time of 5 hours, 7 seconds; second place went to the Fred and Bruce Whitehouse at 5 hours, 2 minutes; while third went to Keith Norton and Bill LeBoeuf with a time of 5 hours, 20 minutes.

Fourth place

The shore appears mighty inviting to canoe mates Shawn Meehan (forward) and Kevin Meehan. The pair finished in fourth place with an excellent time of 5:51.39. They finished second in the annual Great Race (now the Son of Great Race) a year ago.

Quite a story

Kevin Woodworth (right), having just completed the canoe race in the Son of Great Race competition Saturday, appears to be reliving every exciting moment with SWEAT's Rick Barry.

Sliding into 2nd

Second place the the Son of Great Race was taken by Fred (rear) and Bruce Waterhouse. Last year's winners of S.W.E.A.T.'s Great Race to the Sea, the Waterhouse team slid in two minutes behind this year's winners.

Pleased pair

Any child who will be in grades one through eight this fall must register if they want to play soccer. This includes currently active travel and in-town players. In addition, if your child would like to tryout for the two season (fall '88, spring '89) travel teams, they should complete the travel team interest section of the registration form.

Travel teams will also be forming for both girls and boys under 16 age groups (birthdate 1/1/73 or later) and children wishing to tryout for those teams should also register.

The registration fee for the in-town program, which includes the cost of a uniform, is $20 per child with a maximum of $50 per family. Sample shirts, shorts and socks will be available at registration to try on for proper fit. An additional fee will be charged to children who successfully make a travel team.

Volunteers are needed as coaches, assistant coaches, team helpers and in other areas. Adults who wish to coach a travel team should fill out a coach's application form at the registration.

Youth basketball

The Reading YMCA has announced that there are openings in the popular youth basketball programs. These programs are instructional, fun and emphasize fair play, sportsmanship and teamwork.

The programs run varied week nights and are held at the Birch Meadow School.

For more information or to register for these or other available programs, contact the YMCA at 944-7989 or drop by and register at 36 Arthur B. Lord Drive in Reading directly across from the Birch Meadow School.

Knot a problem

by Bill Conlon
One of the greatest inventions in modern fishing history has got to be the development of single-strand "monofilament" fishing line.

Mono casts long and smooth, literally disappears in the water, and offers considerable strength for its diameter. It doesn't rot or mildew, salt water doesn't affect it, and it catches fish.

Prior to mono, we used braided nylon fishing line -- the same stuff that's used for ice fishing today.

And yes, we used to load it onto reels and cast with braided line, just as you use mono today.

But monofilament line is far from perfect.

For openers, monofilament line is terribly weak if it's tied the wrong way. Believe it. Some knots only provide 30 or 40 percent of the line's breaking strength.

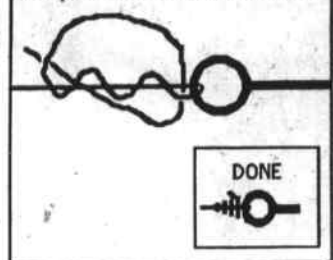

So, your 10 pound test line may break with less than a half-pound of pull if you use the wrong knot.

In some kinds of knots, the line pulls against itself. A simple demo of this is to wrap some line around your hand. Now, take the loose end and slip it under a single strand and yank. Pop! It's that easy to break.

There are a few types of knots that will work for monofilament. The two most important are the Improved Clinch and the Blood Knot. Here we go.

Improved Clinch Knot

The Improved Clinch Knot is used to tie monofilament line onto end tackle, such as a hook, lure or snap swivel. It provides up to 90 percent of the line's actual strength.

To tie the Improved Clinch, take the hook in one hand and the line in the other. (We'll do this as simple as we can.)

Slide the loose end of the line through the hook and leave about six inches dangling. Now, twist the hook about five or six times.

Without losing the twist, stick the loose end of the line through the little triangle formed between the line and the eye of the hook. But don't pull anything tight just yet.

Next, take the loose end and stick it back through the big loop you just formed. Now you can snug it down and trim off the slack. Check the nearby graphic to see if the knot looks right.

The Blood Knot (wish I knew how it got its name) is used to tie two pieces of mono together. The lines can be of different diameters.

The Blood Knot is tricky, and I've been known to make three tries before I get it right. The final test is to pull on both ends and see if it holds. If it doesn't, then the knot failed. The Blood Knot should hold after the line has broken. It's good.

To tie a Blood Knot, take the two different lines, one in each hand, and lay them on top of each other, with about seven inches of overlap.

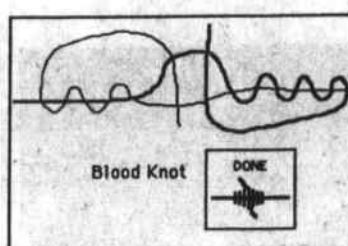

Pinch the two lines with one hand, and don't let go until the knot is done. With the other hand, twist line "A" around line "B" a few times, then stick the loose end into the gap that you're pinching shut.

Keep track of which way the line goes into the gap. Change hands at the pinch point, but don't let that gap close!

Next, twist line "B" around the solid end of line "A" and stick the end through the same gap in the OPPOSITE direction!

Then pull everything tight and see if the knot looks like the illustration nearby. And pull hard. The knot should hold just as strong as the line itself.

Here's a big-league tip when you use monofilament -- always check for tiny knicks in the line. A tiny cut in your mono will weaken the line something terrible. Knicks are caused by scrapes along rocks, fish teeth, and a dozen other reasons. Every so often, pinch the line above your lure and slide your fingers along the first three feet or so. If the line isn't perfectly smooth, then snip off your lure and tie it back on without the weakened line. Which would you rather lose -- three feet of line or eight pounds of fish?

So, those are your two basic knots for using monofilament line. Now you have one less excuse for losing a whopper.

Oh, yes, and when you trim off any monofilament line, even if it's only a foot or two, ALWAYS stick the trash line in your pocket. Mono doesn't rot, so that line will stay right where you dropped it -- for the next hundred years -- until some smarter soul picks it up.

I've seen with my own eyes that monofilament line will strangle and kill wildlife, so PICK IT UP!

- Tackle Box -

Chad Sokolowski of Wilmington just came back from a superb 5-day visit to the Cape Cod area. Chad said he nabbed two bass of over six pounds each, which he plans to mount for his living room wall, and said he got tired of eating all the trout he caught between bass trips. But do you think he invited his favorite outdoors columnist along to cover the action? Noooooooo!

The Free Spirit Bass Masters club of Methuen held their first-ever bass derby on April 24, on the big Merrimack River. A total of 24 members fished the derby, but only eight fish were caught. Top prize went to Neil Feugill for a large-mouth weighing 1-pound-15.

It's turkey time! Hunters are now prowling the western half of the Bay State in search of gobblers, and more than 100 have been taken so far. Dan McGuiness, that endless source of information at the state's Division of Fisheries & Wildlife, said that 77 birds were taken on Monday, and another 35 had been brought in as of Tuesday afternoon. Two of the state's 14 check stations have not yet reported in, he said.

A possible state or nation record turkey has been taken, McGuiness said. A bird weighing in at 27-pounds-10-ounces, with one-inch spurs and a 9.5 inch beard was taken by Dale Tobin of Salem, who brought his bird into Valley Sports in Easthampton. McGuiness said gobblers average about 16 to 20 pounds, making Dale's tom a real monster.

Incidentally, McGuiness said his friend Ed Bradt of Northboro took a turkey this year, using a Quaker Boy "Grand Master" box call to lure the bird in, then switching to a Quaker Boy single reed diaphragm for the close-in work. A load of #4 shot ruined the turkey's day.

Ed's turkey weighed 21-14, but he gutted the bird before he went to the check station. Ooops.

The Massachusetts turkey season runs from May 2 to May 7, then resumes for a May 9 to May 23 part two.

Aside to Bub from Tewksbury Town Hall: the nearest check station when you get your turkey will be in North Rutland, Mass.

Dan McGuiness also mentioned that phase two of the trout stocking program is nearly completed, with a final shipment going out for the Memorial Day weekend. Many of the trout being stocked are over 12-inches, he said, with a few up to 18-inches. Nice fish!

And pardon my lack of humility, but I thought you'd like to hear about this one --

At last Friday's Massachusetts Press Association awards banquet, held at the Newton Marriott, this scribe humbly accepted the award for Best Sports Column, and you're reading it now. The contest entry was "First Church of Christ, Outdoorsman," in case you're a regular reader.

Arnold Berger

Reading's #1 citizen

By PHYLLIS NISSEN
Sirens scream, lights flash, motorcycles skid into view. Firemen, policemen, gymnasts, violinists, senior citizens, politicians, and students rub elbows. The superintendent of the schools, selectmen, and high school jazz band chat expectantly with Understanding. Handicaps reps', Creative Arts kids and Spinning Wheel teens — among many, many others. Just as the white stretch limo' pulls up, the ribbons are cut and the crowd cheers; just after, the invocation is given, the flowering cherry tree dedicated, the high school doors opened.

Used to be that it was embarrassing to live in Reading and not know Arnold Berger. Used to be, the name was vaguely familiar from the headlines and maybe the face from a news photo or the profile from a distance — but not the real person, in person. Used to be that way in the village — but no more.

When members of the Reading Business Association started talking this winter about honoring this citizen and his soon-to-be 80 years, the talk fired the imaginations of a lot of folks about town, and the time to do the honors became obvious and immediate. A committee was formed; plans formulated; surprises suggested, cheered and chuckled at. And the recognition became a reality, a day dedicated to the unofficial mayor of Reading, one Arnold Berger, a resident of the burg for almost 60 years, a doer and a shaker from way back.

Once Friday, April 29th, was officially designated "Arnold Berger Day," some mighty powerful ideas surged in and took root. First off, the 29th, that was Arbor Day — what a time to launch Reading High's new tree-planting campaign! A flowering cherry, in the name of the man and his good works throughout the schools, was the

FM Talk

FM TALK: Thoughts that crossed our far-flung correspondent's mind this week:

Roy Orbison, the legendary rock and roller whose distinctive music helped to dominate the entertainment scene during the late fifties and sixties, stayed — under an assumed name, of course — at the Burlington Marriott recently....Speaking of the Marriott, yours truly is currently hosting the nationally-promoted Marriott Rocks Back Show, which takes place each Wednesday evening in Diamonds Lounge. Each Marriott hotel is presently promoting a similar type of show, but we think Burlington's is the best. Nothing personal in this opinion, of course....

As we are all aware, there is so much controversy surrounding the AIDS issue that it is difficult to discern truth from hysteria. It was pleasing to see the journal of the American Medical Association release last week the results of their exhaustive study on exactly what one's chances are of catching the disease. Naturally, there are too many variables involved to make this study one hundred percent accurate, but at least it gives you an idea of where you stand in the matter: either on the side of the truth, or closer to hysteria.

The study was broken down into several categories: The first was partners who have never been tested for AIDS. Within this category were two sub-divisions: not in a high-risk group (further broken down into those who use condoms and those who do not), and those in a high-risk group (again the said further sub-division). The second category focused on partners who have tested negative for AIDS. This category was broken down into groups with no history of high-risk behavior (once again, with the aforementioned further sub-division), and those continuing high-risk behavior (with the additional subdivision). The final category was partners who have tested positive for AIDS. This category was broken down into just the areas of condom use and non-condom use. The study then broke down your chances of catching AIDS based upon your number of sexual contacts, from once all the way up to 500 times. If you found yourself in the first category, not in a high-risk group, and using a condom, your chances of contracting the disease are 1 in 50,000,000. On the other end of the scale, those who find themselves in the final category and not using a condom, your chances of catching the disease are 2 in 3. Most of my friends whom I showed the chart to fell in the low risk group of the first category, which translated into a 1 in 16,000 chance of catching the disease. In other words, if you are in this group, your chances of getting hit by lightning are greater. But as I said earlier, there are just too many variables to say that this is as good as written in stone.

Proctor House Restaurant under same ownership

Twelfth hour negotiations leading to the successful sale of the Proctor House Restaurant in Peabody failed to materialize late last week. The well known Lowell Street family restaurant will continue to be owned and actively managed by Alfred Crocetti. He has been connected with the restaurant in an ownership capacity for more than three decades.

While the proposed restaurant buyers had recently initiated a modest advertising campaign in local newspapers announcing a change in ownership, Mr. Crocetti said he intends to remain open his regular hours and will continue to feature the Proctor House's regular menu selections and special holiday features, including Mother's Day, Sunday, May 8.

MOTHER

*We set a day aside each year and call it Mother's Day.
We bring her cards or flowers that all have this to say.
We love you Mom with all our heart
you mean alot to us.
You sacrifice your time each day
all without a fuss.
You gave us strength
when we were weak.
You taught us
when and how to speak.
You gave us hope
when all seemed lost.
You gave your best at any cost.
I thank God when ere I pray and not just on Mother's Day.
That in His arms He will embrace my wonderful Mother with all His grace.*

Swing music Spring Party

Fans of swing-era music have a major treat in store, Saturday, May 7, 8:30 p.m. at St. Brigid's Hall on Massachusetts Avenue in Lexington. It is the annual Swing into Spring Party, featuring the Moonlighters, one of the region's largest and most polished practitioners of the big-band sound.

For dancing or just listening, the party offers an evening of fun and fond memories for fans of Dorsey, Miller, Ellington and Basie. Each year the party attracts big-band aficionados from not just Lexington, but from all over Greater Boston. The main attraction, the Moonlighters, is a major-league band that has played together for over ten years.

The Moonlighters are led by Mike Fossier of Boston on reeds; other reeds include Joe Guinta (Swampscott), Ed Sheldon (Lexington), Judy Pippin (Lexington), Ron Grammont (Lexington), Sim Cooledge (Lexington), Bob O'Connell (Lexington), and Greg Smith (Lexington).

Trumpets include Jim Anderson (Westwood), Anne Harlan (Lexington), Jim Hinds (Walpole), Bob Kingston (Lexington), and Art Smith (Lexington). Trombones include Bill Altken (Lexington), Sharon Bernstein (Concord), Bob Davis (Woburn, John Mildner (Newton Center), and Larry Munini (Winchester). The musicians are also all members of the Lexington Bicentennial Band, a seventy piece concert band which performs old-fashioned outdoor concerts in the Hastings Park bandstand in Lexington each Thursday evening, all summer long, starting June 30, at 7 p.m.

Swing into Spring runs from 8:30 p.m. to midnight, May 7. Admission is $7.50 at the door at St. Brigid's Hall, 2001 Mass. Avenue in Lexington. Refreshments will be available.

Berger came to town 59 years ago via Boston, Brookline and Newton, no less; attended and was discharged from Worcester Academy when he, as editor of the monthly magazine and yearbook, left the spot in the latter for the headmaster's photo, blank. He developed ties to the retail business; became assistant manager in a movie theater in South Boston, then one in Ipswich; came to Reading to manage the theater in town; fell in love; and after some years, won the lady's hand and the right to show movies earlier and earlier on Sunday afternoons but not so as to interfere with church-going.

From indoor to outdoor movies, Berger travelled to St. Louis, becoming the first to install a playground in a drive-in and to offer innovations like free pony rides and an all-cartoon show. Berger did so well in St. Louis that he was soon flitting all over the country, setting up drive-ins, growing the chain and taking stock in what became the General Cinema Corporation — which today includes Neiman Marcus, Pepsi Cola, a portion of Cadbury Candy, and Schwepps.

His public relations finesse, penchant for pranks, and generosity with money, time and ideas all played their part in his life in Reading where he settled to raise a family — and now and again to raise Cain. There's a legend about the elephant he brought to town to settle a raging local controversy about whether the color selected for the depot was really elephant grey. And there's the reality of his real estate expertise and the town's first package store.

Berger made quite a name for himself around and about Reading before he carved his name into town history and into the hearts of so many of its citizens. The list of people and organizations desiring to honor Berger and to simply say "thank you" is long, including, among others: AFS, EMARC, REAP, SADD, and the YMCA; the Reading Food Pantry, Alcohol and Drug Task Force, Scouts, Rotary, supporters of the library and Parker Tavern, PTO's, the Council on Aging, the Foreign Language Society, every local concern imaginable.

All of his retirement activities appreciated, his character understood, his essence plain but never simple, the villagers came together to plan an event for all time. They saw clearly that the only way Berger could stomach "Arnoldburgers" — cheese and bacon not withstanding — and Berger Day buttons would be if the proceeds went to the Reading Scholarship Foundation. And so the proceeds went — of the evening's raffles and buffet. And so Berger came to be celebrated.

In the weeks preceding the event, those not easily embarrassed — and those anywhere within sight of Daily Times Chronicle editor Bruce Morang — sported their Arnold Berger Day buttons. Schoolchildren drew pictures of the man, considering carefully why the day had come to be, just who the person was, and exactly what he might have done to bring this upon himself.

On the morning of the 29th, the town began to turn out to honor him at the library, dedicating a blooming bush behind the "Reading Public Library" sign which had been stolen once but which he had generously replaced. They hung banners, sang a song, bestowed upon him a wonderful card, received him with coffee and conversation.

In the afternoon, he was the guest of honor at the Reading Garden Club's May Day celebration on the Common.

The evening festivities included several tributes from local folk and from state officials, all symbolized by the proclamation issued in his name by Reading's selectmen, reading in part: "Whereas, the measure of any community lies not in its land nor its buildings, but rather in the spirit and character of its people; And

THE BLUE KNIGHTS Law Enforcement Motorcycle Club escorted Arnold Berger to a reception and buffet in his honor last Friday at Reading Memorial High School. Here he thanks his escort which also included a Reading Police cruiser and the Fire Department's Engine 4.

whereas for over 50 years Arnold Berger has personified the exceptional spirit and magnanimous character of Reading;

"And whereas the manifestation of his good works can be seen in the radiant glow from the Christmas Lights on our Common or heard in the resonant tones of the Bell of the Old South or seen in the helping hand of our youth in their programs or witnessed by our senior citizens in their activities...."

"Now, therefore, be it resolved ... that the Board of Selectmen urge all of the people of Reading to pause on that day to pay honor to this truly outstanding citizen, to this generous benefactor of our community and to this warm friend of our populace...."

Berger himself took plenty of naps all week to get into shape for his day, managing at the same time to make his daily rounds, sell Berger buttons, check up on details, show his support, get things moving. At the dedication of Reading's new DPW facility barely a week before, he had ventured a mighty firm opinion in his usual expressive way. "This is probably the finest public works garage in the world for a town of less than 22,000," he had begun, continuing with a comment on its cost — which never made it into the paper.

To Nancy Troy and the Reading Business Association, he offered an appreciative, and carefully chosen, thanks. "You made my day," he said.

To the assembled crowd, hanging on his every word and admiring his new rank and official Reading firefighter's hat — with what looked to be an Israeli flag, front and center — he spoke in a similar vein. "I feel like Zsa Zsa Gabor's fifth husband," he said, on the podium, at the end of a long line of tributes to himself. "I know exactly what to say and exactly what to do. I just don't know how to make it interesting."

Screening patients are seen by appointment only.

To make an appointment, simply call our office at 272-2639 Monday through Friday between 10 am and 2 pm and ask to speak with Jane.

FREE EYE SCREENING FOR INFANTS AND CHILDREN

A child's performance in school can be limited by poor sight. Often the correction of near sightedness, far sightedness or astigmatism can remove a stumbling block causing poor performance. But poor grades may not be the only problem caused by poor vision.

Children are susceptible to many eye diseases and congenital problems which may be subtle and missed for years. Common pediatric eye problems include strabismus (misalignment of the eyes), amblyopia (commonly referred to as 'lazy eye'), and uncorrected refractive errors. Amblyopia, or 'lazy eye' affects approximately 4 out of 100 people. Early detection, prompt treatment by an ophthalmologist, and parental help are necessary to overcome these diseases.

A free screening clinic for infants and children up to 9 years old will be held on Sunday, May 15th at the Burlington Eye Associates office at 172 Cambridge Street, Burlington. Screening will be by appointment only and appointments may be made by calling Monday through Friday from 10 am to 2 pm at 272-2639.

Pediatric Ophthalmology Specialist Dr. Deborah Zuckerman and Drs. Phillip Gendelman, David Gendelman and Robin Steinberg will conduct the screening. The ophthalmologists are members of Burlington Eye Associates and are contributing their time to provide this valuable service to area infants and children.

For additional information, please contact Jane Wooley at 272-2639.

MATH ANXIETY

Middlesex Community College Division of Continuing Education/Community Services is pleased to announce that the course "How to Overcome Math Anxiety" will begin on Tuesday, June 14 (6 to 9 p.m., three weeks, Cost $34).

Instructors Cathleen Hall of the Middlesex Community College Department of Mathematics and Joanne

Sherwood of the Division of Continuing Education recently testified at the "task force on women, minorities and the handicapped in science and technology" at Harvard University.

Their presentation dealt with the problems of those who have wished to pursue mathematics, but are reluctant or unable, because of anxiety or previous negative experiences. They presented a program designed to affect change in both attitudinal levels and skill levels.

For more information call 275-8910, ext. 291. To register, please call 275-2233.

GRAND PIANO WORKSHOP

Pam Emerson, one of the foremost piano tuners and technicians in the country, will conduct a Grand Piano Workshop on Saturday, May 7, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., at the Kalliroscopie Gallery, Rte. 119, Groton, Mass.

Sponsored by Indian Hill Arts, this workshop will address such questions as: how does a grand piano work; what is involved in the maintenance of your piano; how do you evaluate new and used pianos; how do you make the right decisions about the piano you now own.

The fee for this informative seminar is $25. For further information and to reserve your spot, call Indian Hill Arts at 486-9524.

Feel good about yourself AFTER A MASTECTOMY

Women need to be especially concerned with the weight and balance of a breast form. If not properly balanced, poor posture and discomfort can result.

It is best to see a trained fitting specialist and have professional advice when selecting a breastform and bra. There is no reason for any woman who has had a mastectomy to feel self-conscious about her appearance or not to look just as she did before her surgery.

Case Surgical Appliance offers a wide selection of forms and bras in a variety of shapes and styles from light fluff fitted to the natural weighted silicone breastform. A trained mastectomy specialist is available to discuss your fitting needs, private and confidential.

By appointment only.

People caring for people

Cancer, whether diagnosed for the first time or recurring, can threaten anyone's sense of well-being. Some people, when they learn they have cancer, experience shock and denial. Others are not surprised, as if they had been expecting it all along.

The cancer patient must contend with emotional as well as physical reactions to such treatment and side-effects as cancer treatment is nearly always aggressive. Surgery can be disfiguring, radiation or drug treatments can extend over weeks or months, and their side-effects can include nausea, hair loss, fatigue, cramps, skin burns or weight changes.

Cancer treatment can place significant demands on a patient's spirit as well as his or her body. There are medical questions which might be confusing — What did the doctor say? What do various terms mean? What is the prognosis?

Because people with cancer, their friends and family members face intense fears, anxieties and frustrations, too many fail to ask the medical questions most important to their physical and emotional well-being.

So, where can one turn?

Physicians and nurses are excellent sources of support. Their commitment to caring is reflected in their day-to-day activities.

The role of an oncology nurse carries with it a lot of responsibility, commitment and caring.

"There are many different ways in which nurses can be important to the cancer patient," said Lolly Clinton, RN, and an Oncology Certified Nurse (OCN) at Winchester Hospital who has specialized in oncology nursing care for the past nine years. "We can listen to expressions of feelings or act as a sounding board. We can help focus anger or anxiety by helping to explore the specific causes of anger, drug reactions and side effects."

Listening, reacting and absorbing the patient's outpourings, can often be as important or even more important than "doing" anything. Words of encouragement when treatments are meeting the patient's expectation are as important as when they are not.

Because the oncology nurse cares for patients on an out-patient basis, the need exists to help them not only during treatment but in meeting day-to-day challenges both emotionally and physically. "It is a challenging role which is immensely rewarding," said Ms. Clinton.

"Being able to help oncology patients through the stress of their cancer and to help them realize that they can still go on living and leading fulfilling lives is very rewarding," said Susan Morrison, RN.

Medicine can alleviate the physical pain, but the pain that one goes through when someone is dying, when one can no longer do for oneself, or when one has to quit one's job to help care for a family member requires a special caring — a caring that doesn't eliminate the pain but one that makes it easier to endure.

When a patient calls to discuss some physical changes that are happening, the nurse pulls from her memory the way the person looked the last time she saw him, his actions, expressions, the tones in his voice. Then the nurse evaluates and compares what she is hearing or seeing with the patient's goals and progress.

"Each area of nursing has a special, unique aspect unto itself," said Carol Mitchell, RN, OCN. "Oncology nursing is special to the degree that we get to know our patients and they get to know us." The oncology nurse follows the care of each patient from the day cancer therapy begins and continues to check the patient when therapy ends.

The atmosphere of Winchester Hospital's Oncology Department is home-like and the staff is very supportive of the individual needs, comfort and dignity of the patient and their families. Cancer is not something anyone forgets. Anxieties remain as active treatment ceases. A cold or cramp may be cause for panic. The Oncology Department at Winchester Hospital is always available for questions from patients and the general public, always available for support.

Career changing!

Career change is often one of the most anxiety producing activities any of us can experience. It represents a rude interruption to life. A time of confusion and self doubt.

In spite of all the anxiety the prospect of career change can drop upon us, the fact is that changing career directions can be one of the most rewarding and fulfilling experiences in life. For it can set you on a track to greater self-fulfillment.

The most effective means of effecting positive career change has proven itself to be involvement with well trained career consultants who are able to take one through the process of self examination (a search for your strengths, weaknesses, and job preferences), and, then, develop with you an effective self-marketing campaign which is designed to promote your personal self and your skills where they are most needed.

Now, the Counseling Center is proud to announce that it has taken this effective program a step further with the establishment of its career development program, a specialized, personal service designed to help you make creative changes in career in an organized, step by step, effective, non-threatening, successful manner.

Whether you are re-entering the job market after years of absence, or whether you are looking for a more personally rewarding career, the career development program offers the services of highly trained consultants with years of experience in helping persons find the right job.

If you are interested in gaining further information regarding this important program, contact the Counseling Center at 935-1989. Ask for information about the career development program.

By ANTHONY MANCONI

When a woman puts on a dinner dress, it doesn't necessarily mean that she is going out to dinner. When she puts on a cocktail dress, she may or may not intend to go to a cocktail party. But, brother, when she puts on a wedding dress, you can bet that she means business. I've been married for 25 years, and I'm still in love with the same woman. If Kathy ever finds out, she'll kill me!

You have read many times in this column about my Aunt Nora from Wilmington. Her husband, Angelo, was a commercial fisherman. Unfortunately he drowned when his boat capsized in a storm off the Grand Banks. He left Nora a beautiful house in Wilmington, a summer cottage in Hampton Beach, and a small fortune of his "net" earnings. "Not bad," I told her, for a man who couldn't read and write. "Yeah," she said, "and he couldn't swim either!" It wasn't long afterwards that she attended a family wedding, sporting what looked like the Hope diamond on her finger. "Where in the world did you get that Rock of Gibraltar? I asked. "And how could you afford anything so expensive?" "Well, Chips," she said, "I found a box containing $7,000 in Angelo's trunk. There was also a note saying, 'Spend $2,000 for a casket and $5,000 for a stone, and this, my dear,' she said waving her hand in the air, "is the stone."

Angus was very sick, and his dutiful wife Mary would sit by his side and read stories about their beloved Scotland, by candlelight. One evening she said, "Angus, dear, I have some washing to do downstairs, so if you feel yourself slipping away, please blow out the candle." Folks, there's nothing so beautiful as a big beautiful smile on an elderly person's face. I walked into a diner and ordered a cup of coffee. "Hey," I said later, "this coffee looks like mud." "Why not?" the counter man said with a grin, "it was 'ground' this morning!"

During intermission at a Woburn Elks dance, Bobby Burns stuffed a napkin down the end of a trombone. When the band members came back to resume playing, the trombone player made one supreme effort to get a sound out of his instrument, blowing his toupee off the top of his head, and it flew over the dance floor. The woman I was dancing with and four others fainting, thinking that a bat was flying across the room.

Grace Boutwell put an ad in the Woburn Times, offering a reward for the return of her lost poodle. Two days later, Bob Giguere, carrying the fluffy dog under his arm, returned it to its grateful owner. "Where did you find my little Poozie?" Grace asked. "Jimmy Quinno had it tied to the end of a pole, and he was washing the windows at the Woburn Elks with it." Folks, please, when people come to share their fears with you, find the time to share your courage with them.

"Are your parents home?" I asked my nephew Dennis Tully. "They was in, but now they is out." "What?" I exclaimed. "They was in, now they is out." "Where on earth is your grammar?" "Oh, she's in the kitchen baking an apple pie."

Father John Crispo whispered to the head usher, "There's a man asleep in the third pew - go wake him up." "Gee, Father," the usher exclaimed, "you put him to sleep, don't you think you should wake him up?"

Many of you I am sure have seen how a magnet attracts an iron nail. There are many people who have magnetic personalities that bring people toward them. They have that certain warmth that seems to say, "Welcome friend, I'm sure happy to see you," and they really mean it. That invisible but powerful force in a person is called charisma. It can't be bought, borrowed or stolen. One must be endowed by our Creator. Some of the many who I know are blessed with this wonderful attribute are Capt. Dan Gately, Metro Mounted Police Unit Coordinator Officer Frank Smith, Stoneham, Bernice and Bill Sullivan, Nancy Gonzales, Bill Rafferty, Andrea Carroll and Margi Fusco, and the Choir of St. Margaret's Church in Burlington, whose music and voices rival those of the Sistine Chapel Choir, John Ryan of Fells Hardward, Saul Ziner, CPA, Buddy and Eleanor Stratton, Tom Jordan, Fred Shaw of North Reading, Vinny and Ruth Harrington of Reading, Tony Angelucci of Russell Farm, Woburn, Nina Gaeta, Patricia Milward, and Bill and Mary Burton.

My cousin Tommy Cook is married to Kate but is still in love with Edith. His wife found out and told Tommy in no uncertain terms that "he couldn't have his Kate and Edith too!"

So you've heard every golf joke or story? Well, here's one more. Kevin Fisher taught a gorilla how to play golf. Kevin then challenged Richy Liberace, Bruce Ota, Olin Brown, and Scott Hamilton to a game of golf. The gorilla teed off with a 325-yard drive that landed, and then stopped rolling two inches from the cup. My four friends were ready to concede the game, but the big ape addressed the ball, and then swung for another 325-drive down the fairway. Richy, Bruce, Olin and Scott were elated that the gorilla wasn't taught how to putt.

Woodchips congratulates Frank Curley of Wilmington who is the General of the Massachusetts Council of Minutemen and Militia. Many members of this elite corps are keeping history alive every year as they march the full 17 miles to Concord. I'm proud to say that next year will be the 20th march to Concord for Jeff Coville of Wilmington. Frank Mazzoni, however, may be drummed out of the service. It seems that Frank forgot to set his clock ahead April 3rd and as a result, he disqualified himself as a Minuteman by being an hour late for muster.

Folks, please try to attend the Shriner's Circus from May 2 to May 8. The charities and goodwill the Shriners support deserve our participation. Almost every boy has wanted to join a circus. Even Bob Giguere at 39 and holding answered an ad that said, "Wanted, Circus Human Cannonball. Must be able to travel." Bob didn't make it - "wrong caliber."

Tamiko Kido, a senior at North Reading High School was chosen to receive the Good Citizen Award from the Olde Redding Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Good luck, Tamiko. Speaking of the D.A.R., whatever happened to the "Sons of the American Revolution?"

Louis and Gail O'Malley of Winchester were going through customs after a three week trip to Europe. They were asked, "Do you have anything to declare?" "Yes," answered Louis, "bankruptcy?" Carol Bruce said to me, "All my husband Jimmy does is nag, nag, nag. I'm so nervous, I've lost 20 pounds." Gee, why don't you leave him? "I will," Carol replied, "after I've lost 20 more pounds."

Some new cars come with an "air tight" guarantee. If any of the air leaks out of the tires, it will be replaced free. I asked the salesman when I picked up my new car, "What does the 24-40 warranty mean?" "I thought you knew," he replied with a smile. "It's good for 24 months or 40 feet, whichever comes first."

I said to Russ Rebidue of Lynnfield who is the proud father of twins, "Russ, it must be a problem to tell them apart." "Not so far," Russ replied, "One is a boy and the other is a girl."

I know that I am rushing the season, but I went to the beach on a beautiful warm day last week and asked a gentleman standing at the water's edge. "How's the water?" "Lukewarm," he replied. I ran into the surf and dove under an incoming wave, and I nearly froze stiff. I ran out and exclaimed, "I th-th-thought you said the water was lukewarm." "Well," the old gent said, "it look-a-warm to me."

Fitness class is for pregnant moms

Expectant mothers can learn how to exercise safely during pregnancy at six-week Fitness Through the Childbearing Year class offered by New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH) in Stoneham, starting Thursday, May 12, from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

The program was developed by the Physical Therapy and OB-GYN departments to teach mothers-to-be about essentials of safe exercise throughout pregnancy and into the post-partum months.

Run by a registered physical therapist, each class will include stretching and gentle exercise, a relaxation segment and a brief lecture.

This class is not a substitute for early natural childbirth classes offered by the hospital's Rigby Maternity Center, but rather a complement to these programs.

Participants must pre-register for the course and have their physician's permission before beginning the program. The cost for the six weeks is $30. Classes will be held in the physical therapy department on the subground level of the hospital.

For additional information and forms, contact the NEMH Physical Therapy Department at 665-1740, ext. 314.

Woburn Public Library

Your local library is at your service

(Following is the second in a series featuring libraries in this area. Today we are taking a looksee at two of the oldest libraries in the area, Woburn and Winchester and one of the newest, Burlington. National Library Week was celebrated two weeks ago but anytime is a good time to visit and locally we have some of the finest in the Commonwealth, three of which you will be reading about today. Next we will look at the libraries in Wilmington, Tewksbury, No. Reading and

Woburn Public Library

Historical Background - While the Woburn Public Library was not founded until 1855, Woburn's library system actually began in 1789 with a "Social Library." This library was dissolved in 1827 and its holdings distributed to its members. In 1835, the Young Men's Library was founded. It survived until 1865 when its holdings were incorporated into the Woburn Public Library. The present Woburn Public Library building, opened in 1879, still houses some volumes from both of these early libraries in its recently established Glennon Archives.

The Winn family of Woburn, who were instrumental in founding the public library in 1855, were also responsible for the generous bequest to the town in 1875 which was to be used for a library building, land, books, paintings and furniture. Henry Hobson

Richardson, the famed architect responsible for Trinity Church in Boston, was selected to design the building. The Woburn Public Library was the first library building Richardson designed and the only one not to have undergone any major alterations or additions. The architecture is Romanesque with variants of English gothic design. Just a few months ago, the Woburn Public Library was designated a National Historic Landmark.

Special Services - As part of its special services, the Woburn Public Library would like to herald its ongoing series of Adult Programs, scheduled from October through June on every first and third Friday of the month at 1 p.m. At these programs a speaker alternates with a feature film. Speakers address a variety of topics from beauty and health concerns (for example, Color Me Beautiful and CPR) to cultural and personal interests (such as Wyeth's Helga pictures exhibit or handwriting analysis). Feature films have included comedies, musicals, dramas, mysteries and travelogues.

In addition, the library hosts two book discussion clubs, one held every second Tuesday afternoon of the month at 2 p.m., and one every second Wednesday evening of the month at 7:30 p.m. These groups, comprised of about 12 members each, read and then meet to discuss one title per month. Books are supplied by the library, and the subjects are far ranging. New members are always welcome.

An occasional workshop series is also held involving such matters as parenting and household management. These workshops are coordinated with the Children's Department so that the parents may attend them while their children are at story hour.

The Woburn Public Library is pleased to announce a new service that directly connects the Woburn Public Library with the vast resources of the Boston Public Library. Through the introduction of telefax technology, magazine articles, government documents, and business information can be retrieved from the Boston Public Library's collections and sent to the Woburn Public Library within a matter of hours. This telefax project is operating through June 1988 under a grant provided by the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners in cooperation with the Boston Sub-Region of the Eastern Massachusetts Regional Library System.

Special Collections - Apart from books, the Woburn Public Library has for loan: video cassettes, records, large print books, and talking books, tapes, and records for the blind.

The Woburn Public Library also houses an extensive genealogy collection. This material includes monographs and manuscripts primarily concerned with Massachusetts history and families. Hundreds of questions are handled each year from this collection, not only from local enthusiasts but also from researchers across the country and around the world.

The Woburn Public Library has a collection of Woburn newspapers on microfilm. Dating back to 1844, these newspapers are also extensively indexed. While all, except the Daily Times Chronicle, are now defunct, they often prove to be a rich source of materials for researchers.

Located at 45 Pleasant Street in Woburn, the Woburn Public Library's hours of operation are: Winter schedule: Monday - Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 9 to 5:30 p.m. Summer schedule: Monday - Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday, 9 to 5:30; Saturday - closed.

Burlington Public Library

The Burlington Public Library, founded in 1816 by 22 men as a social organization with 250 volumes, now operates seven days a week and has over 50,000 volumes in its collection. The first library operated by the municipality began in 1857. Silas Cutler, the first Town Librarian, received a salary of $30 per year. Town Meeting enlarged the Library and Post Office which shared quarters in 1879. By the beginning of the 20th century, the Library moved to the Center School at the corner of Bedford and Cambridge streets which today is the home of the Burlington Historical Society. The present library facility, thanks to the efforts of Steadman L. Rice, then Chairman of the Board of Trustees, opened to the public in September, 1968.

Twenty years later the Burlington Public Library is converting its holding records to machine readable entries. When the computer project nears completion next year, over 60,000 items and all the library's patron registration data will be entered into the computer base it shares with the Merrimack Valley Library Consortium. Circulation of library materials will be automated providing cost effective management of the library.

The collection offers many alternatives for borrowers. Besides the large book collection, residents may select phonograph records, audio cassettes, and videotapes in addition to framed art, puzzles, games or puppets. Programs are offered throughout the year for adults and children. During National Library Week, for example, there will be a program on child discipline practices for parents presented by the Delphi Center on Wednesday, April 20 from 7 to 9 p.m. The Children's Department features Larry Sayco, the yo-yo champion at 10:30 a.m. on the same day.

The Burlington Public Library is open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. The Library's information service is available during library hours and can also be accessed by telephone. The staff invites the public to visit the Burlington Public Library during National Library Week to take advantage of all the items available for loan, to look for answers to questions, or simply browse through the resources available free to the public.

A Man's Gotta Do What A Man's Gotta Do

All young men have one responsibility in common. They have to register with Selective Service within 30 days of their 18th birthday. All it takes is five minutes at any post office to fill out a simple form. So if you know a young man about to turn 18, remind him to register. It's one of those things he's got to do.

Register with Selective Service
It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

It's strawberry time!

Strawberry season is now and exotic dishes are also in vogue. The following two articles display these two delights quite well.

STRAWBERRIES WITH A CAPITAL C

There are many things to recommend strawberries at this time of the year when they're at their height of color and taste. Just as important as their delicious taste, however, is the fact that these wonderful fruits happen to be an uncommonly good source of vitamin C, an essential nutrient that some research has linked to lower cancer risk. A cup of strawberries provides as much vitamin C as a medium orange. Low in calories (about 45 per cup), they also are a good source of dietary fiber.

Since heat, handling, transporting and storing strawberries all contribute to the loss of vitamin C, it's best to buy them where you know they're fresh. Strawberries don't ripen after they're picked, so select berries that are bright red and plump, with a natural shine. Avoid berries that are pale or have white shoulders.

At home, don't keep strawberries in an airtight container, since trapped moisture can speed the rotting process, and keep them in a cool place. (The refrigerator may be too cold, but that's better for the berries than too hot). For the top taste and nutrition, eat strawberries as soon as possible, washing and hulling them just before use.

The really delightful dilemma of strawberries is how to use them: in a cold strawberry soup, in a salad (a gelatin mold, spinach, shrimp or chicken salad), in pancakes, strawberry coolers, pie or frozen yogurt. When they're at their peak, just eat them plain!

Here's a lowfat recipe for a delicious strawberry frozen fruit ice dessert that's quick and easy to make:

STRAWBERRY GRANITE

2 1/2 cups strawberries, hulled
4 1/2 tbsp. sugar
1 1/2 tbsp. lemon juice
3/4 cup water
In a blender or food processor, puree the strawberries with other ingredients until smooth. Pour into an ice cube tray and freeze until solid.

When frozen remove the cubes from the tray and place in a blender or food processor again. Process until cubes are completely crushed and smooth, and a grainy mixture is produced. Spoon into dishes to serve.

Frozen strawberries may also be used, but if they are frozen in syrup, omit the added sugar in this recipe. For a variation on the usual flavor, substitute orange liqueur for an equal portion of the water.

This recipe yields four 3/4 cup servings, with 81 calories and almost no fat in each serving.

FLAVORS OF SPICE ISLANDS

The trend in American cooking is shifting away from "plain" fare to more interesting, exotic and spicy cuisine. The U.S. now imports nearly 300 million pounds of assorted spices each year, and we grow another 100 million pounds here at home. With this kind of interest in flavors and seasonings, the cooking of Indonesia — home of the Spice Islands — holds a wealth of recipe ideas for adventurous American cooks.

Steaming and stir-frying are common cooking methods that limit fat and help maintain the nutrient content of foods. The popular Indonesian "barbecue" involves flavoring foods in spicy marinades before broiling or grilling. The customary spices of Indonesia include cinnamon, clove, coriander, cumin, curry powder, chili, garlic, ginger, nutmeg, pepper, tamarind and turmeric, as well as many more exotic spices.

One note of warning: Indonesian recipes frequently include nuts and coconut, two high-fat ingredients that should be used sparingly.

You may have trouble pronouncing the recipe that follows, but everybody will love it! This modification of a traditional Indonesian recipe for fish has a wonderful, somewhat sweet, zesty flavor. It can be served as a main dish, or as an interesting appetizer.

IKAN BAKR

1 lb. fillet of tuna, swordfish, or any firm fish, cut into 1 inch cubes

1/4 cup lemon juice
1 tbsp. sugar
1 1/2 tbsp. soy sauce
1 tsp. oil
2 garlic cloves, crushed (or 1/4 tsp. garlic powder)

Chinese star anise (if unavailable, use 3/4 tsp. Oriental Five Spice Powder).

Combine all the ingredients in a large bowl and mix well. Let the mixture marinate for at least 15 minutes. If desired the mixture could be left to marinate in the refrigerator all day.

Preheat the broiler; transfer the fish to baking pan and arrange so all the pieces are in one layer. Broil until the fish is firm and cooked through (about 10 minutes). Serve warm, perhaps with a brown rice dish and a colorful vegetable.

This recipe yields about 16 pieces, which could serve 4 for a meal, and has 160 calories and 6 grams of fat per 4-piece serving.

BIRD-A-THON

Bird watching teams count the number of bird species seen over a 24-hour period. An amount is pledged for each species. Funds raised will be used to support local nature programs at Massachusetts Audubon sanctuaries.

The Bird-a-thon will take place from 6 p.m., Friday, May 20 through 6 p.m., Saturday, May 21.

To join a birding team, make a pledge, or to obtain a pledge form amount call your local Massachusetts Audubon sanctuary or Massachusetts Audubon Society's Environmental Helpline at 1-800-541-3443.

WHITEWATER RAFTING IN MAINE

Families vacationing in Maine this summer should consider adding a day of whitewater rafting on the Kennebec River.

The Kennebec, a 12-mile whitewater rollercoaster, plunges through the remote and beautiful Kennebec Gorge. The river is perfect for all ability levels, from never-evers to experienced paddlers. The recommended minimum age for the full trip is 12, but younger rafters and those not up for excitement of the upper section of the river can be put in below the heaviest whitewater. They'll still experience the thrills of whitewater rafting and will be with the family for the remainder of the trip.

Great Adventures, one of Maine's premier whitewater outfitters, provides a delicious riverside steak bar-be-que and a slide and video presentation of the day's highlights following the trip. Great Adventures boasts an excellent safety record and begins each trip with a complete whitewater orientation session. Each raft directs the crew safely through the exciting rapids and waves of the Kennebec.

Great Adventures offers day trips on the Kennebec Monday through Saturday from May through September. Trips meet at 8:30 a.m. and finish at approximately 4 p.m. All necessary equipment is provided. Wetsuit rental is available. Great Adventures base facility is located in The Forks, Maine on Route 201. The Forks is approximately one hour south of the Quebec border and two-three hours from the coast of Maine. A full array of lodging and camping is available in the area. Advance reservation is necessary.

For further information on including a whitewater rafting trip in your Maine vacation contact Great Adventures, P.O.

Box 1P, The Forks, Me. 04985, phone (207) 663-2251.

YANKEE TRAVEL GUIDE

Yankee Magazine's Travel Guide to New England and Its Neighbors is fresh off the press with new ideas and the latest information for vacationing in New England, New York and eastern Canada.

Actually, Yankee Magazine's Travel Guide to New England and Its Neighbors is more than a summer vacation planner, it's invaluable for fall foliage touring. A special feature on "Where to Find the Foliage" offers a regionwide selection of surefire views and suggested routes. In fact, most of the recommendations in the guide are available year-round.

Reader "favorites" is a popular feature in the travel guide. These are suggestions sent in by travelers and residents who want to share great places and events they have discovered. This year a visitor from Michigan wrote about a "delightful private museum crammed with antique music boxes" she found in Maine. A Rhode Island local sent the details on a Strawberry Social that out-of-towners would surely enjoy. Dozens of such recommendations are sprinkled throughout Yankee Magazine's Travel Guide to New England and Its Neighbors.

Yankee Magazine's Travel Guide to New England and Its Neighbors may be obtained from your local bookstore, or mail order from Yankee Publishing Inc., Dept. YBPR, Depot Square, Peterborough, N.H. 03458. Please add $2 for postage and handling.

Nature Facts

BIG BIRD — The first fossil of what scientists believe to be the biggest seabird ever discovered has been unearthed on the Atlantic coast. According to National Wildlife magazine, the fossil was encased in a 30 million year old block of stone excavated in Charleston, South Carolina. Early speculation is that this enormous bird is a distant relative of today's pelican. Scientists believe the bird weighed 90 pounds with a wingspan of almost 18 feet.

POINTED INFORMATION — The spines of many cactuses, such as the hedgehog variety, help the plants shade themselves. According to International Wildlife magazine, most cactuses have very thick skin that helps keep life-giving water inside. But this thick skin also means the plants have a hard time keeping cool. That's where the spines come in. They cover the plant so thickly that their skins are always in the shade.

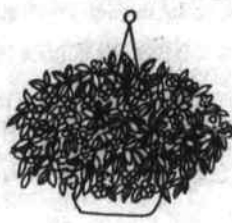

Scientists say the blue color of the sea is due to only to the reflection of the sky.

Older persons should be careful of eyesight

An estimated 10 million adult Americans have lost some degree of sight. Forty-three percent of this group are age 65 and over. Of the new cases of blindness that occur each year, 55 percent are also from this age category.

"It's important that older adults in our community learn about common vision problems and how to protect their sight," says Richard C. Hurley, president of the Massachusetts Affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness. "Good eyesight is essential to living independently and productively, as well as living life to the fullest."

Vision changes — such as needing more light to see, difficulty in focusing on near objects and adjusting to glare and darkness — are common as we get older.

Another important step in preventing vision loss is understanding common eye disorders and the basic symptoms. Common vision problems among older adults that can lead to major vision loss include:

- *Cataracts — the clouding of the lens of the eye. It is estimated that 95 percent of those over 65 years of age have some degree of cataract. If needed, cataracts can be removed through surgery, resulting in a definite improvement of vision in a majority of cases.

- *Glaucoma — a progressive disease caused by too much pressure within the eye. Glaucoma blinds more people than any other single eye disease. It can occur at any age, but the risk increases as we get older. Vision lost to glaucoma cannot be restored. However, once detected through an eye exam, most cases of the disease can be controlled through drugs.

- *Diabetic Retinopathy — a deterioration of vision caused by changes in the blood vessels of persons with diabetes. It is a major cause of blindness among adults. Early treatment with laser therapy, however, can be effective in reducing the risk of severe vision loss.

- *Macular Degeneration — a disease that affects a person's ability to see fine detail. Age-related macular degeneration is a leading cause of new blindness among older Americans.

Treatment can be effective for certain types of macular degeneration, but it must take place early in the course of the disease. Low vision aids, such as magnifiers, can help make the best use of remaining vision. Symptoms vary for each disease, but warning signs that an eye problem exists may include:

- *sudden hazy or blurred vision
- *recurrent pain in or around eyes
- *double vision
- *flashes of light or showers of black spots
- *change in color of the iris
- *sudden development of persistent floaters
- *halos or rainbows around lights
- *dark spot at center of viewing
- *vertical lines look distorted or wavy
- *excess tearing or "watery eyes"
- *dry eyes with itching or burning

"It's important to note, however, that some eye problems do not display any symptoms in the early stages," says Mr. Hurley. "That's why regular eye exams are so important."

Learning more about vision changes and preventive steps can help minimize vision loss. For more information about vision problems and eye care for older adults, request the brochure, "Growing Older With Good Vision" by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to: Prevent Blindness, 375 Concord Avenue, Belmont, Ma. 02178. Other materials and audiovisual aids geared toward older adults are also available.

WXKS-FM (KISS 108) has announced that its annual anniversary party will take place May 21 at the Great Woods Center for the Performing Arts in Mansfield. The party will take place between 4 and 11 p.m., and will feature at least seven terrific acts, including Belinda Carlisle, Boz Scaggs, the Four Tops, Jermaine Stewart, Debbi Gibson, and the Jets. According to the station's promotional department, approximately two-thirds of the tickets will be sold to the public, while the rest will be given away as prizes on the air. You'll have to tune into KISS for details as to when and where the tickets will go on sale.

An update on my great and good buddy, Tony Resta, musician extraordinaire from Stoneham: His new band, All The Above, will premiere their new act on Saturday, May 28, at Bunratty's in Allston. Tony tells me that All The Above consists of a group of top-notch studio musicians whose original tunes are derived from the influences of groups such as Sting, Toto opening will be announced shortly. His restaurant, which will feature Australian cuisine, is scheduled to open in early May....Erika Volpe, from Medford, has recently joined Jean-Pierre & Co., an exclusive hair cutting studio on Newbury Street, in Boston. Erika has many friends and relatives in the Woburn area, and would love to see all of them visit her at her new location at 73 Newbury Street.

Another hair salon grand opening took place last week, this one in Stoneham. The shop is called Snips, and is located at 125 Main Street. The reason we mention this opening is because one of our dearest friends, Donna Scialani, of Stoneham, is the owner, and she and her partner, Pam Hammond, have done a terrific job of designing the ultimate hair-cutting shop.

Two other grand openings this week: Mark Pontiac, which is owned by another of our great and good buddies, Mark Smith, officially kicked off its beginning as a business in Woburn (directly behind the Woburn motorcycle owners, totalling over 500,000 units. That's quite an increase from the early 1960's when women owned only 1% of the motorcycles. This trend is continuing, with the major motorcycle manufacturers reporting 30% of sales on some models to women.

It's a little known fact that the first people to ride a motorized vehicle up Pike's Peak were women. In 1916, Augusta and Adeline Van Buren, descendants of this country's eighth president, rode their Indian motorcycles up Colorado's famous mountain during their New York to California motorcycle trip.

Women have been a part of motorcycling ever since. In 1985, women accounted for 8.7% of all

But why are women riding more? One reason is learning to ride is easier and safer than ever. The Motorcycle Safety Foundation has been promoting and recognizing rider courses since 1974, and reports that 36% of MSF course attendees are women. The course teaches fundamental skills such as shifting, turning and braking, and also emphasizes use of proper gear: approved helmet, eye protection, long sleeve shirt or jacket, pants and boots.

For further information on a nearby MSF rider course, call 1-800-447-4700.

Hints For Homeowners

The Indoor Air Story

When it comes to keeping comfortable inside, it's often what's outside that counts. If your air-conditioning system predates the decade it may be time to consider replacing it with a more modern and efficient central system. That way you and your family can feel cooler and you're less likely to get hot under the collar when the electric bill comes due.

Thanks to modern methods, you don't have to be a seer to predict a unit's energy efficiency. You just have to know its SEER: Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio. According to the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute, the higher the SEER, the more efficient the unit.

The more efficient an air-conditioning unit, the higher its SEER rating.

The average for a unit made in 1976 is seven. For one made in 1981 it's close to eight and in 1987 the average is almost nine.

You can get a free booklet that answers dozens of important questions about air-conditioning your home. For a copy, send a stamped, self-addressed business envelope to the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI), Dept. U-97, P.O. Box 37700, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Irish young man

He wants to stay in the USA

Before leaving the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational High School in Wakefield, where he participated in a special citizenship awards assembly, Senator Edward M. Kennedy spoke with freshman student Fursey Keleghan, 15, of County Galway, Ireland, who is seeking the necessary papers from the United States government to be able to remain in the United States.

Fursey, who has lost both his father and mother, came to the U.S. in August of last year and is living with his aunt and uncle in Melrose. He wishes to remain with his aunt and uncle, but his visa expires in December of this year.

A likeable young man who has made quick friends with his fellow students at Metro Tech., Fursey said he will be deported back to Ireland in December unless his friends and the U.S. government can come to his aid.

Before Sen. Kennedy left the school, Fursey met with the senator (through the help of Henry Corcoran, head of the Electrical Dept.) and presented him with a letter explaining his plight.

Hospital seeks volunteers

Volunteering can be an important part of an active lifestyle, no matter what a person's age. Volunteers at Winchester Hospital range from age 14 to 87.

People volunteer for various reasons, yet they all have something in common: they enjoy helping people.

Bill Connell who has been a volunteer at the hospital since March, has already logged in 188 hours. "Winchester Hospital took good care of my wife during her extended illness and I want to give something in return," he said.

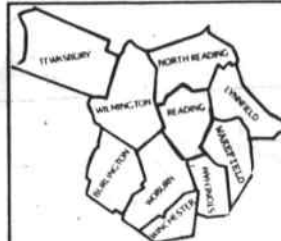

Mr. Connell explains the satisfaction he gains from being a volunteer. "The patients and staff tell me how much they appreciate the service, and that always makes it worthwhile. You can't help but feel good when you help someone."

Winchester Hospital has 698 active volunteers. In the past year they gave 40,000 hours of their time to the hospital, according to Marie Johnson, director of Volunteer Services.

Volunteers work throughout the entire hospital in both patient contact and non-patient contact areas. For each service there is a written assignment guide as well as on the job training with experienced volunteers.

To find out how to become a part of Winchester Hospital's volunteer team, call 729-9000, Ext. 3094.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

A documentary created at Burlington High is being used at Winchester High to make it a little easier for parents to look at the world from the perspective of a ninth-grader.

The video, which has been incorporated into Winchester's freshman "Wellness Program," shows students speaking frankly to each other about AIDS. It addresses issues such as how the disease is transmitted, living with AIDS, and how to prevent the disease.

The 24 students in Diane Flaherty's third grade at Wilmington's Shawsheen School were recently rewarded for five months of 100 percent participation in the Pizza Hut Book It Reading Program — and they just ate up that reward.

The prize consisted of a special pizza party at the school, complete with pizza, drinks, desserts and games.

The Stoneham Chamber of Commerce, the School Committee and the School Department are brainstorming ways to work together for the benefit of Stoneham High students planning to head out into the business world.

According to Chamber president Kim O'Neil, the Chamber would like to start a program through which high school students would spend a day with Stoneham professionals in fields which the students are interested in entering. Last year, 45 local businesses expressed interest in participating.

The School Committee has already presented O'Neil with the following ideas: have the Chamber of Commerce represented on an Occupational Education Advisory Committee; ask the Chamber to develop a speaker's bureau for career development, curriculum areas and middle school enrichment; designate certain school/town events to be jointly sponsored; involve the Chamber in awards programs which recognize excellence and community service; explore utilizing schools as resources to business and industry (in-service, technology, basic skills); and explore a partnership to expand use of local educational television programs.

The only American ever to be decorated by a Japanese emperor, Jack Thayer, came to Reading's Killam School recently to pick up several cartons prepared by the students there for the friends they've made this year in Japan.

Thayer, a research fellow in Japanese arts and crafts at the Peabody Museum in Salem, will see to it that the cartons — containing several items handcrafted by the students as well as examples of 'American pop' culture — reach Japan. They will be on display there this summer at the Folk Museum of Ota-Ku Burrough, Tokyo as an exhibit entitled "Little Fairy Tale Authors of Massachusetts."
